Julia Ward Howe Is Laid at Rest While the Nation Mourns

THOUSANDS ATTEND FUNERAL SERVICES FOR COUNTRY'S MOST FAMOUS WOMAN.

THE sorrow of a nation centred in Boston this afternoon at the funeral of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

Under mourning skies the body of the beloved woman was brought from the Summer home at South Portsmouth, R. I., to this city, which she graced so many years by her life and work.

There was no service at the Summer home, not even of prayer. But this afternoon the Church of the Disciples in the Back Bay Fens was filled to its capacity for the funeral.

Never did the funeral of private individual in Boston call to a House of worship a gathering more thoroughly representative of the best in life.

The religious, literary and social improvement world predominated, indicative of the life of Mrs. Howe. Men and women high in business, in society, in culture and in advanced thought were there The aesthetic side of modern living was much in evidence

ALL WALKS OF LIFE REPRESENTED.

But scores of others from lesser walks of life were there. Representatives of little foreign societies came to show their love for this wonderful American woman. The poor whom she had aided were among the mourners. These showed above all the intensely practical side of Mrs. Howe's labors for humanity, labors which reached down from the high plane of her own surroundings to depths of oppression and want below.

At the close of the funeral in the Church of the Disciples Boston surrendered the body to Cambridge for its final resting place in Mt. Auburn cemetery.

Journey to the Church.

The funeral day began at South Ports-Portsmouth at 8:30 in the morning. From Oak Glen, the Summer home of Mrs. Howe, and the place where she died, the body was taken to Middletown railroad station. Accompanying it were Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott, Mrs. Laura E. Richards, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall and Professor and Mrs. Henry Marion Howe. These members of the immediate family rode in two carriages behind the vehicle containing the body.

For burial Mrs. Howe was placed in a casket trimmed with white broadcloth, whose silver plate was inscribed thus:

JULIA WARD HOWE.
Born May 27, 1819.
Died October 17, 1910.

Mrs. Howe's funeral dress was of black. It was relieved at the throat by white ruching. There was no jewelry. The hands were folded on the breast.

On the casket were white flowers, roses, lilies, cadnations and chrysanthemums.

Funeral Party on Special Train.

At Middletown the funeral party went aboard a special car attached to the 9:10 train from Newport. On this train came the William Safford Jones, pastor of the

TRIES SUICIDE; HIDES IDENTITY

While driving along Mystic avenue, Somerville, Patrick Hurley, a lamp-lighter saw a woman about twenty-five years of age, in a hysterical condition, wandering on the Mystic beach, near the Somerville bathhouse. The woman ran shrieking from him, but was overtaken, and when asked what the trouble was, replied, "I'm going to drown myself."

Hurley carried the woman to the carriage where she lapsed into unconsciousness. She was taken to the Somerville Hospital, where she soon revived, but refused to tell her name and address, or anything about her troubles.

She wears a wedding ring, has black hair and brown eyes, and wore a black and white house dress, blue coat and black low shoes.

3 AUTOMOBILES ARE WRECKED

Three automobiles were wrecked within a few minutes of each other at the foot of a steep incline at the corner of Warren street and Commonwealth avenue, Allston, this noon. The occupants were uninjured. Each machine lost a wheel after skidding on the slippery, oily roadbed and striking against the curb.

The first machine was owned and operated by John E. Belle, No. 152 Warren avenue. It lost a fore wheel. The second was the automobile of Julian C. Jaynes, No. 76 Quinn street, West Newton, and this one smashed a front wheel. The third lost a rear wheel. The name of the owner was not obtained, but the machine number was 24,522. The Jaynes car was operated by Miss Ethel Jaynes, who was accompanied by several women. The road takes a sharp bend at the foot of the incline. The oil placed there recently with the rain of the morning left it slippery.

CRIPPEN HIMSELF ON STAND

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The climax was reached in the Crippen murder case this afternoon when Dr. H. H. Crippen took the witness stand to try to refute the charge that he had murdered his wife that he might marry his pretty typist, Ethel Leneve. A day of dramatic incidents was reached at 4 o'clock, when the defence called the little prisoner to the witness chair.

As Crippen was called he appeared calm and self-possessed. The women spectators regarded the dapper little prisoner with peculiar interest. The jurors listened with rapt attention for the opening of his story.

Not a Practical Surgeon.

Crippen sank into the witness chair and folded his hands in his lap. He looked calmly toward the counsel table, waiting for the ordeal to begin. If he realized that his life depended upon his story and the impression it would make upon his twelve peers in the jury box he showed no excitement over the fact. His voice was clear and penetrating, as he answered the perfunctory questions as to his name and age and place of residence.

"Are you an experienced and practical surgeon?" asked the examiner.

"I am not," replied Crippen. "I have taken a course in surgery but it was purely theoretical and was not followed by actual practice."

Crippen said that he had never performed a post mortem operation in his life, adding that he did not believe he could.

Had Bleached Her Hair.

The Crown produced evidence to support its contention that Crippen had purchased five grains of hyoscin on January 19 last.

POISON PLOT IS CHARGED BY BOSTON GIRL

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Miss Elizabeth Sexton of Dorchester, Mass., apeparde in the Harlem court to-day before Magistrate Breen having had summons issued for Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hall, formerly of the Christian Church, charging them with assault.

Miss Sexton claims to be a cousin of Mrs. Kate L. Damon, widow of John Damon, a Wall Street broker, who left about $5,000,000 and she told the court that Mrs. Damon was being detained against her will and that she believed she had been hypnotized by the Halls.

She informed the court that in her mind the Halls had Mrs. Damon completely under their power and that although she had tried repeatedly to see her, she had been unable.

"I believe Mrs. Damon is being slowly poisoned to death," Miss Sexton said. Miss Sexton says Mrs. Damon is seventy years old and until two years ago she lived with her sister, Mrs. Henry Happold. After the sister died Mrs. Damon became friendly with the Halls.

Miss Sexton says she called upon the Halls some time ago in her search for Mrs. Damon, and that Mrs. Hall said the widow had gone to the Pacific Coast. Later she found her at her home in West One Hundred and Twelfth street, having engaged detectives to assist her in the search.

Mrs. Hall stated to Magistrate Breen that Wilson H. Powell of No. 38 Broad street was Mrs. Damon's attorney, and that all questions concerning her should be taken up with him. The Magistrate thought likewise and the matter of seeing Mrs. Damon was referred to the attorney.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Chicago, Oct. 20.—The weather cleared to a great degree shortly before noon, and although it was cold for baseball every assurance was given that the rain of the morning would not prevent the Cubs and Athletics from fighting it out in the third game of the world series on the diamond this afternoon.

This was welcome news for the thousands of fans who stood in the rain all morning, and in fact part of the night, to secure seats for the contest.

Nearly 15,000 persons had passed through the gates to the Cubs ball park at noon to-day. The drizzle of rain had stopped and the open bleachers were crowded with men and women who risked wearing apparel and health to see the big teams play the third game of the world's series.

It was the first home game of the Chicago team, and the homecoming of Chance's men was not as joyful as it would have been had they managed to get one of the Quaker City games. Nevertheless, the Chicago fans were pleased to see their favorites, and professed their belief that they would win both games in the Windy City.

Cub Fans Still Loyal.

The rain began at four o'clock in the morning, and came down in penetrating torrents, which brought long faces to those who were banking on fair weather. The gates were opened at 9:30 o'clock, and thousands poured into the field at that time.

For to-day's game provision had been made for more than 35,000 fans. There are 29,000 seats, and the bleacher fields will hold the balance.

The line before the park gates was started at midnight by a man who said he was from Danville, Ill. He wanted to reserve six seats.

The Cubs face a critical situation to-day. If they win, they will have what is considered an even break for victory. If they lose, they will be practically out of the running, with no tallies and only one game for the Athletics to go.

Cub fans are betting 6 to 5 that the Chicago team will win the next game, and five to eight odds that Philadelphia doesn't win the series still are standing. Even money is offered that the Athletics do not win the series in five games, and three to five that the Cubs win both games at home.

Women Fight for Places.

On to-day's game ten to seven is offered that the Cubs get seven hits, and two to five that the Athletics do not. Several bets have been made at one to ten that the Phillies do not win four straight.

The Considine brothers of Detroit are said to have wagered $50,000, the winnings on the first two games of the series, at six to five that the Athletics win the series.

Hundreds of women had stood in the drizzle since dawn to get tickets for the game to-day. With the men they ate lunches sold to them by shrewd frankfurter men, and at 10 o'clock the army had swelled to 9,000.

Police intervention was necessary in many instances to settle disputes about places in the line.

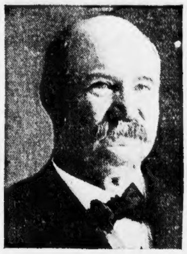
DAVID B. HILL,
FORMER SENATOR,
WHO DIED TO-DAY



EX-GOVERNOR DAVID B. HILL DIES AT ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct 20.—David Bennett Hill, former Governor of New York State died at 2:45 a. m. at Wolfert's Roost, a suburb of Albany.

Mr. Hill was 67 years old.

Mr. Hill, who coined the famous phrase "I am a Democrat," was born at Havana, N. Y., on August 29, 1843. He was the son of Caleb and Eunice Durfey Hill. He was educated in the common school of Havana and later graduated at the Havana Academy. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1864.

Immediately he took an active interest in politics and became famous as a speaker. He was elected a delegate to the Democratic State conventions from 1868 to 1880. In the conventions of 1877 and 1881 he was chosen chairman.

Talked for the Presidency.

He was chosen delegate to the Democratic National Conventions of 1876, 1884, 1896, 1900 and 1904. In the Democratic National Convention in 1900 he made a brilliant speech seconding the nomination of William Jennings Bryan for the Presidency.

In 1871 and 1872 Mr. Hill was a member of the New York Assembly. From 1882 to 1885 he was Lieutenant-Governor of New York State. Immediately following the expiration of his term he was elected Governor and held that office until 1891, when he was elected to the United States Senate, which office he held one term.

At the national Democratic convention in 1892 Mr. Hill was a prominent candidate for the Presidential nomination. He had a strong following in the convention and for a time it looked as though his aspirations would be fulfilled. Mr. Hill was again a candidate for Governor of New York in 1904. He was defeated and since then he has not taken a leading part in Democratic politics, although he has always been a factor.

As a lawyer Mr. Hill was considered one of the best in the country and from 1886 to 1888 was president of the State Bar Association.

Always a Woman Hater.

A peculiar trait of Hill was his confirmed hatred of women. He never married, and it is said that this was because of the death of his fiancee when he was a young man.

Mr. Hill had been suffering for some time from a bilious attack, which was followed by a severe cold. It was thought that that he would recover, but the combined attack seemed to sap all his strength. Until the relapse came last night Mr. Hill's condition was not considered alarming. The attending physicians held out hope to his friends that he would ultimately shake off the disease and get well. He was conscious almost to the end.

200 Saved; 440 in Peril

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 20 (via Havana)—The French transatlantic liner Louisiana, bound from Havre to New Orleans, has been wrecked on Sombrero reef in the southern hurricane. Two hundred of her passengers have been rescued, but there are still 347 others and a crew of 93 on board.

The rescued passengers arrived here to-day on board the revenue cutter Forward with thrilling stories of the disaser. The vessel was driven ashore at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon during the hurricane, all control of the ship being lost in the storm.

Steamship in Vortex of Storm.

The full force of the hurricane struck the Louisiana when she was fifty miles from the Havana harbor. The ship was in the vehy vortex of the storm, and she was not only blown from her course but came dangerously near foundering. Those arriving here stated that the paesengers were thrown into a panic as practically all had given up hope for the vessel.

In addition to the big passenger list the ship carried an assorted cargo. Her sharp prow rammed into the reef and the waters were pounding within eight feet of the decks when the revenue cutter left. The captain of the Louisiana resolutely refused to leave his vessel declaring that he would go down with her or remain to do every thing in his power to save her.

Fear Another Hurricane.

Although the ship lies in a hazardous position, the greatest fear was that another hurricane would sweep out of the West Indies before further relief could arrive. The revenue cutter Forward, after arriving here, immediately started on a return trip to bring others of the passengers ashore.

The cutter stumbled upon the Louisiana by accident. The captain was searching in the wake of the storm for disabled ships and salvage work when the Louisiana was sighted.

The Louisiana was just finishing up a long voyage by the way of Corona, Spain, and the Canary Islands. Her costly cargo may have to be jettisoned.

TWO STORMS ON THE WAY TO SWEEP BOSTON

Boston is to be bombarded by two storms to-night, according to predictions, and the war of the winds may cause havoc. The forecast is mighty bad weather for this evening.

Boston is in a peculiar position. A tropical storm has been creeping up the coast for ten days, and is now central off Hatteras. It is going to hit Boston within a few hours. There is another storm descending upon the city from the St. Lawrence Valley. Boston is now on the edge of both. When they collide something lively may happen.

The whole country is suffering from weather. There is a freeze in the far West. Temperature in Yellowstone Park to-day was sixteen above zero. The coldest place in New England is Greenville, Me., where it is 50. Boston is the warmest place in Yankeeland. The temperature here stood at 64 at 10 o'clock.

The tropical storm which is coming to Boston is very wet. It has already drenched Washington, Philadelphia and New York. In Washington in twelve hours, beginning at 8 o'clock last evening, the rainfall was 3.42. This is about the normal average for a whole month.

While there is a hurricane off Hatteras and high winds in Canada only a zephyr blew in Boston. The velocity of the wind here was only three miles an hour.

This was the calm before the storm. There are storm signals flying all along the coast from the Carolinas to Newburyport.

The forecast for Boston and vicinity to-day reads:

Rain to-night and Friday; colder on Friday; moderate easterly to north winds, increasing to brisk and higher.

CRIPPEN ON STAND DENIES KILLING OF HIS ACTRESS WIFE

The last witness for the prosecution was Adeline Harrison, an old friend of Belle Elmore. She testified that Mrs. Crippen had bleached her hair, thus corroborating further testimony of the Crown, stating that a wisp of bleached hair had been found with the remains in Crippen's residence.

Solicitor Tobin, in opening for the defence, made a strong plea for his client and declared that Crippen would take the stand to answer any question the Court or prosecutor might ask.

"Does this man wear a hunted look?" cried Tobin in dramatic fashion, pointing his finger at the dapper Crippen.

The prisoner looked straight ahead as court, jury, counsel and every spectator in the room stared at him in the silence which followed.

"If Crippen had done this deed," asked Tobin, "would he have taken Ethel LeNeve to live in the same house where the crime had been committed? The prosecution has not established the fact that Crippen purchased the [illegible] in which the remains were found, nor has any trace of the dissecting knife with which the body must have been mutilated been discovered. No trace of them were found in the cellar of the Crippen house or elsewhere."

Question of Identity.

The counsel for Crippen then played his strongest trump card.

"Who knows whether Belle Elmore is dead or alive?" he shouted. "That is something which the jury must know before it can condemn any man for her murder. We know that Belle Elmore Crippen threatened to leave her husband and Crippen declares this threat was fulfilled.

"When Mrs. Crippen finally disappeared after their bitter quarrel, Dr. Crippen foolishly began a campaign of lies to avert the scandal. His only desire was to save his good name. There was nothing criminal in what he did. All of those lies which he told and we all admit that they were lies raised prejudice and suspicion against him.

"What was more natural for him to do than flee? The finger of the law was already pointing at him. Accusations were being made in America, and prejudice was growing in England. And, again, what was more natural than he should take Miss Leneve with him. Her name was being linked with his in the accusations, and he thought too much of the girl to leave her unprotected. It was his interest in her and her welfare which prompted him to persuade her to leave the country. And so they fled upon the Montrose.

Was a Woman the Victim?

"You gentlemen of the jury, must be entirely satisfied that the remains found in the cellar at No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent belonged to a woman. You have heard the testimony of eminent pathologists who stated under oath that they had been unable to determine in their minds whether that mutilated body was of a man or of a woman and furthermore you must be convinced that they belonged to Belle Elmore Crippen before you can convict this man."

It was reported that some of the feminine members of one of England's noblest houses were in the courtroom [illegible]. The morbidly curious men were fought back by the driving wedge of femininity.

An important point was formed for the defence almost as soon as the day's session opened, when Dr. Wilcox, an expert retained by the prosecution, testified that hyoscin could have been produced in the remains found in the cellar of Crippen's home by putrefaction.

The purchase of this drug by Crippen was supposed to be one of the chief points in the prosecution's case. Dr. Pepper, at the inquest, testified that traces of hyoscin had been found in the remains and this evidence had been corroborated by testimony from other of the scientific witnesses.

Dr. Wilcox was closely questioned by Solicitor Tobin after he had admitted, in answer to questions from Prosecutor Muir, that traces of the drug had been found in the dismembered body.

The admission for the defence made by Dr. Wilcox opened up a new avenue of hope for Crippen, and he showed his elation. Crippen turned toward the jurors during Dr. Wilcox's testimony as though to impress them with the importance of it.

Wound Made by a Knife.

Dr. Wilcox was the first important witness of the day and his evidence was looked upon as the most important adduced so far in the trial. It furnished the base of a new line of defence which Crippen's counsel eagerly grasped. The elation of the defence over the testimony of Wilcox was short lived, for Dr. Spilsberg, another pathologist, took the stand and testified that he had made a microscopical examination of the piece of flesh which was introduced in the court room yesterday and was convinced that the mark upon it was really a scar.

"I found glands on either side of the mark, but none underlying the mark itself," said he.

"This would indicate that it was made by a surgeon's knife."

Professor Muir turned to the jury and exclaimed:

"There is no room for doubt that the mark comes from a scar."

Frisbie Collars.

The Nickerson Company, 345 Washington Street, Boston, Mass., have just added a new line of Frisbie Collars for Fall and Winter, and they guarantee them to fit. The Nickerson Company say that if you purchase Collars from them and for any reason you feel that they are not just what you want they will buy them back. The greater part of the current issue of City Affairs, the organ of the Good Government Association, is again devoted to assailing Mayor Fitzgerald's administration.

He is criticised for failing to be present or represented at the hearings on the Boston Elevated holding bill, the article being written under the caption, "Where Is the Mayor?"

Under the caption, "A Jewel or a Vice," the Mayor's consistency or inconsistency in advocating the consolidation of the street, water and engineering departments is discussed. A parallel showing an abstract from his first inaugural address in 1906 and then his letter to the City Council on September 15 of this year, is used in support of the claim that the Mayor has changed front.

MUTT AND JEFF BOOKS POPULAR

The book that makes the whole world laugh with you is the Mutt and Jeff Book of Cartoons. It is the most popular book of comic drawings ever published and it can be obtained by every reader of the BOSTON AMERICAN by clipping coupons for seven consecutive days from the daily and the Sunday AMERICAN and the payment of thirty-five cents. If sent by mail in return for the coupons and the price named, ten cents more will be charged to prepay postage. "Bud" Fisher, the artist who originated Mutt and Jeff and drew the pictures, has selected all the drawings in the book. They are the artist's favorites. He thinks they are his sixty-one best cartoons and it is worth while to see the selections Mr. Fisher has made. They show Mutt and Jeff in the most ludicrous situations their author has ever thought of.

FOSS PLANS A WHIRLWIND TOUR OF STATE

The most aggressive and comprehensive movement ever taken in this State in behalf of the Democratic party was started to-day by Congressman Eugene N. Foss, the Democratic candidate for Governor, when he made arrangements for a whirlwind tour of the State.

"The liveliest campaign that was ever held in this State," he said, "will be conducted within the next eighteen days. The campaign will extend from the Cape to the Berkshires, and we'll sweep the State."

Foss, Cassidy, Hamlin, Vahey and other speakers will address a great opening rally on Saturday evening at Tremont Temple. There will be an overflow meeting in Faneuil Hall.

A big meeting has been arranged for Worcester Tuesday. On Saturday afternoon at the Quincy House, Candidate Foss will meet the chairman of the various city and town committees and make arrangements with them for the carrying on of the fight. Letters were sent out to-day to all of the chairmen of the city and town committees instructing them to secure halls for meetings.

HEINZE AGAIN ON THE STAND

After an interval of one week the hearing on the suit of F. Augustus Heinze of New York, who seeks to recover $300,000 from A. D. F. Adams and several other Boston brokers, which he charges they disposed of illegally, was resumed in the Supreme Court to-day before Master F. Rockwood Hall.

Heinze resumed the stand to-day for further cross-examination by Attorney Boyd B. Jones, for the defendants.

The hearing was adjourned one week ago to allow the defence to make an exhaustive examination of the Heinze books. Heinze says he borrowed $300,000 from Adams and others, depositing $600,000 in securities, and that Adams and the others sold him out before the time limit of the loan had expired.

WIFE OF NAVAL OFFICER WHO IS AFTER DIVORCE

MRS J. KENNARD TRACY

TRACY DIVORCE CASE IS TO BE HEARD MONDAY

Mrs. Mildred B. Tracy, the factory-girl bride of Captain James Kennard Tracy of the United States Navy, is scheduled to come before Judge Pierce's session of the Suffolk Divorce Court Monday morning to plead for the divorce she seeks from her young husband.

As the case is on the contested list there is extra interest in what opposition Captain Tracy will set up to the accusation of his wife that he deserted her four years ago, five years after their marriage.

Varying circles of life are represented in the opposing sides. Captain Tracy is the son of the late Lieutenant-Commander Charles K. Tracy, at one time commandant at Charlestown Navy Yard and prominent in the older naval set. His mother came from one of New Hampshire's leading families.

The young wife was a Portsmouth, N. H., factory girl. She was wonderfully pretty when Captain Tracy, then a lieutenant stationed at Portsmouth Navy Yard, met her nine years ago. She was only seventeen. The smart young lieutenant easily won her girlish heart. In spite of the opposition of his parents they were married in 1901 in the Catholic Church at Portsmouth after an engagement of only one month.

Proud of his charming bride, Lieutenant Tracy offered her every advantage he could. Among these advantages was excellent training for her voice, which was naturally sweet and melodious. Mrs. Tracy became a gifted singer.

Lieutenant Tracy was transferred to Charlestown Navy Yard. The couple took an apartment in Brookline. In 1906 Lieutenant Tracy was given a captaincy and was transferred to the Pacific coast.

According to the divorce libel filed by Mrs. Tracy last April, that was the last she saw of her military husband. On this alleged desertion she bases her divorce. She became a professional singer and appeared in vaudeville.

It is understood that Captain Tracy has since been transferred back to one of the Eastern navy yards, but that he is soon to return to the Pacific coast. On the strength of this the case, at request of counsel, has been placed at the head of the divorce list for Monday.

MOUNT HOLYOKE HAS A WATER FAMINE

SOUTH HADLEY, Oct. 20.—Mount Holyoke College is having a tough struggle with its first water famine. There actually is not water enough for the college girls to bathe in. The faculty has issued an order prohibiting use of water for bathing purposes till rain comes. The girls are too disgusted for words. The latest salutation is: "Good morning, how long since you washed your face?" Dish washing is still allowed.

CUSTOM HOUSE INVESTIGATORS 'RIGHT ON JOB'

Judge Burton Parker of Detroit, Lester Cullon of Baltimore, special treasury agents, and Customs Agent Carl H. Chandler of Boston, commissioners appointed by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh to investigate the Boston custom house, appeared on the Cunard wharf to-day when the Ivernia docked on her arrival from Liverpool.

The commissioners remained on the pier until the customs inspector with his forty assistants examined the baggage of the passengers. Judge Parker refused to make a statement, remarking with a smile that they were simply there to meet their friends.

There were 108 saloon passengers, 308 second class and 1,247 in the steerage. Among those in the first cabin were Sir Gilbert T. Carter and Lady Carter. Lady Carter was formerly Miss Gertrude Codman Parker of this city. Sir Gilbert was Governor of Barbadoes, representing the British Government. His term expired last August, and from now on he will make his home in Boston.

Lieutenant Robert Frederick Balfour of the Scots Guards was also a passenger. He laughingly denied that he had come to this country in search of an American wife.

Until yesterday every passenger was on the lookout for Wellman. Then word was received that he had been picked up.

GLOUCESTER'S GAS COMPANY ABSORBED

The par value of the stock is $50 and it is understood that the purchase price was $135.

FIND BROOKLINE WIDOW SUICIDE

The mystery which surrounded the sudden death of Mrs. Emily Cartwright, who was found dead in bed by her son, Harry, at her home, No. 151 Davis avenue, Brookline, Monday morning, has been dispelled by the death return. The return reads suicide by illuminating gas. James W. Cartwright, Mrs. Cartwright's husband, died last Thursday after a lingering illness, and grief is ascribed as the cause of the widow's act.

MAN WHO KILLED GIRL DIES SUICIDE

CORTLAND, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Dr. Loring R. Loomis, the mining promotor who shot and killed Miss Lillian Elodie Chute here on October 11, and then turned his revolver on himself, died in the hospital here early to-day from his self-inflicted wound.

WOMAN CUTS THROAT BY FALL ON BED

Miss Catherine Corey was found on the floor of her room at No. 102 West Springfield street to-day with gashes in her throat which she said she received in falling upon a pair of scissors. She was treated at the City Hospital and was later returned to her home. Miss Corey said after returning from the hospital: "It was an accident. The scissors were on the bed. I fell and the blades cut my throat."

TALK ON PLAYGROUNDS.

For the purpose of creating interest in public recreation grounds and baths, a meeting will be held at the Boston City Club to-night. Addresses will be given by J. Leonard Mason, director of the Brookline Gymnasium; Dr. Thomas F. Harrington, director of school hygiene, and Dr. Ernest Hermann, director of physical education in Cambridge.

GAYNOR'S EX-PARTNER IS NAMED IN $500,000 RACE BRIBE TESTIMONY

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Details of the $500,000 effort to prevent the passing of the anti-race track bill at Albany involve, according to the testimony of Assistant District-Attorney Robert Elder of King's County, the names of James R. Keene, famous as a Wall Street and racing man, David Mitchell, Harry Payne Whitney and Charles H. Hyde. Hyde is now Chamberlain of New York City and a former law partner of Mayor Gaynor. That newspaper men received money for fighting the bill and that the bill would have been defeated, but for the displeasure of the late Senator McCarren, who was angry because he did not have the handling of the fund, were other allegations appearing in Mr. Elder's testimony before the Merritt joint legislative committee, which to-day will resume its inquiry into the alleged bribery.

Former State Senator Gardner was named by Mr. Elder as authority for the statements. Ex-Senator Gardner himself refused to testify, but Mr. Elder, when called to the stand, testified to a conversation he said he had with Gardner last March.

"In the month of March," testified Mr. Elder, "I sent for Gardner through his lawyer, who wanted to know what for. I told him for a personal chat, and shortly after Gardner came to my private office. I told him I wanted to know about the efforts made at Albany to defeat the race track bills. I told him I had indictments against certain men and that his information might help.

"Fund" Meeting at Delmonico's.

"Finally Gardner said: 'I don't mind telling you there was a meeting at Delmonico's at which money was subscribed.' He said that among the men there—that I remember—were James R. Keene, David Mitchell, Mr. Parsons, Harry Payne Whitney and Charles H. Hyde." "Mr. Parsons" was not further identified.

"He" (Gardner), continued Mr. Elder, "said there was a dispute about who should handle the money. Finally, he said, $125,000 was given to James Gaffney to take care of three or four members of the Legislature—Tammany men, he said."

James C. Gaffney, a political intimate of Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, is president of the Gaffney Construction Company which has handled many municipal contracts.

"I asked him the total amount of this fund," the witness resumed, "and he said, 'Oh, considerable.' I told him I had heard $300,000. He said if I had guessed $500,000 I would have been nearer the mark. Of this sum he said Senator Grady got only $4,000, and I might imagine what the others got.

McCarren Angry.

"Senator McCarren, he said, was angry because he didn't have the handling of the fund and because a strange man was going up there expecting to get away with such a proposition. He attributed the passage of the bill to McCarren's displeasure. McCarren was secretly in favor of the bill, he said, and wanted to be avenged because he had not been consulted."

Then came mention of the press. "He" (Gardner,) resumed Mr. Elder, "said the newspaper men were liberally taken care of out of the fund." Asked for the names of these men, Mr. Elder said: "I recall, he said, the charge that a man named Joe McEntee of the Sun got $3,000, that Patrick Relihan of the Press got $3,000, that Louis Seibold of the World got $3,000, George Jandrin of the Brooklyn Citizen $3,000 and Tirrell of the Brooklyn Eagle, $500." He said the Times man of Brooklyn got $300.

After Mr. Elder finished his testimony, George Tirrell, secretary to Comptroller Prendergast, and until January 1, Albany correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle, took the stand and testified that Gardner had offered him $300 at Albany and he had declined it.

Hyde's Part Described.

Little light was thrown on the part said to have been taken at Albany by Chamberlain Hyde.

"He" (Gardner), said Elder, "told me he went to Albany with Hyde because Hyde didn't know the ways of Albany and how to approach people. He said Hyde had subscribed at the meeting at Delmonico's for William Engeman, who had failed to pay, and that Hyde had put in a bill for personal expenses, to reimburse himself. He said he had an arrangement with Hyde by which he was to be paid for doing the work at Albany, but that Hyde didn't pay him and that this made it necessary for him to take $10,000 out of the amount he did get elsewhere to make good on two agreements. Five thousand of this money, he said, went to the president of the Senate."

The witness was reminded that the then president of the Senate, Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, had voted for the bill.

"Did you understand he meant Senator Raines (Republican leader of the Senate)" asked counsel.

"I so understood," said the witness.

"I asked him more about Foelker," continued the witness, picking up another thread. "He said Foelker had taken $10,000 to vote against the bill, and then had voted for it anyway. He said: 'You know Foelker was a sick man, and we had a scheme to bring him to Albany and have three doctors there pronounce him too sick to go to the Senate, but Canon Chase stuck so close to him that the scheme fell through.'"

"To Name His Own Price."

Before Gardner testified, Assemblyman Foelker related how he had been told to "name his own price." He had been approached, he said, by both Gardner and Frederick Schroeder—formerly quarantine commissioner, now serving a sentence in Sing Sing for larceny.

Mrs. Gardner, who was May Yerby, an actress, listened to her husband's quizzing by the commission and his refusal to answer.

She took it philosophically. "If one marries a politician," she said, "one must expect unpleasant things to happen now and then."

Concerning the statement of Assistant District Attorney Elder, insofar as it refers to him, Louis Seybold made this statement to-night:

"As I understand Mr. Elder's statement he says ex-Senator Gardner told him that he had paid money to certain newspaper men, of whom I was one, to influence them against the Hughes race track bills in 1908. If Mr. Gardner made any such statement he lied. For myself and every other newspaper man mentioned by Mr. Elder, as far as I know, no money was paid to any newspaper man by Mr. Gardner or any other person for or against the race track bills, and the man who says so is a malicious liar, using the names of decent men to hide his own depravity."

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

Children's Hair Troubles

Much harm results from washing a child's head with common soaps and shampoos, as most of them contain too much alkali. This makes the scalp rough and dry, and often leads to a diseased condition, which causes the hair to fall out. A safe thing to use is a shampoo made of pure Refined Soap, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. Birt's Head Wash is made of these ingredients. It removes the dirt and disease germs that settle in the hair and on the scalp, and makes the hair vigorous and glossy. Drug and Department stores sell tubes at 25c., jars 50c.

CHELSEA EXPOSITION IS OPENED BY PRESIDENT TAFT BY WIRELESS

At Word from the White House, Chairman McClintock Orders Wheels of Machines to Turn.

When President Taft sent his Marconigram to-day to Chairman William E. McClintock of the Chelsea Board of Control, Chelsea won the honor of being the first city in which an exposition was opened by wireless.

From the White House in Washington, President Taft issued his air message that flung open the doors of the "Made in Chelsea" exhibition in the new Chelsea City Hall. At the word from the chief executive, received at the special wireless station surmounting the tower of the municipal structure, Chairman McClintock ordered the wheels to turn that made the Chelsea forum resound with the whirring buzz of numerous machines.

The opening day was successful, and Chelsea manufacturers had good reason to be proud of the ninety odd exhibits in every nook and corner of the handsome new City Hall, erected at a cost of $300,000 to the taxpayers of Chelsea. The building was thronged with visitors all day to-day.

Opened By Wireless.

The opening of the exposition marked a new era in the history of Chelsea. Recovering with a rapidity that seems almost magical from the disasters wrought by the fire of April, 1908, Chelsea folk to-day heard the glad word that the city has won back practically the property valuation it had known in the prosperous days just prior to the conflagration. The promise was made to-day that from now on the city would boom ahead, building a new habitation on the ashes from which it had arisen with all the marvelous growth of a phoenix.

In anticipation of the wireless message from Washington, the committees in charge of the exhibition of manufacturers had installed a wireless apparatus on the City Hall, put up by the William J. Murdock Company. At the given hour, the key ticked the code signals into the ears of Operator Leon W. Bishop, and he in turn interpreted the words from President Taft to Chairman McClintock. The latter caused the large American flag to be unfurled at the Broadway entrance to the City Hall as a token to the world that the big show had been officially opened. A few moments later, a return message was ticked back to the president, telling him that the exposition had been most auspiciously started.

The opening of the exposition was heralded by Chelsea people to-day, as they have never heralded any previous event. The streets were gaily bedecked with bunting; streamers hung from every store and business block, and from almost every private residence in the heart of the city. Chelsea had on its holiday attire to mark the opening of a new epoch in its development as an industrial centre.

To Boost Manufactures.

While the chief reason for holding the exhibition is to exploit Chelsea manufactures, another purpose which the citizens' committee had in mind was to awaken the public to the need of a great organization of manufacturers, business and professional men and citizens generally. Plans will be started immediately for the furthering of this idea, so that one of the gains to Chelsea which the exposition will bring will be an association which will be of untold benefit to the city.

The men to whom was given the task of arranging for the big show have worked long and hard, and to-day's success came to them as a well merited reward for their endeavors to make the undertaking one that would bring the greatest credit to their city. For several months the preparations have been under way. In the beginning, the committees of citizens interested every manufacturer in Chelsea in the enterprise.

Opening of the Big Fair Marks New Era in History of the Phoenixlike City

92 Exhibits.

In all, about seventy-five manufacturers agreed to place exhibits in the City Hall rooms, and the general result seen to-day was a total of ninety-two exhibits, all different products, which can truthfully bear the designation of "Made in Chelsea."

The zeal shown by the manufacturers was met with equal or even greater amount of interest on the part of Chelsea citizens. Several days ago, the Chelsea board of control requested all citizens "to hang out their flags." So enthusiastic was the response, that every citizen not only hung out his flag, but decorated his home or place of business with bunting of red, white and blue. In Bassett, Chelsea and Bellingham squares to-day are seen a holiday life and activity that would be a credit to the merriest of Old Home Week celebrations. Broadway from the Revere line to Medford street is a continuous line of color, and to-night scores of electric lights will add beauty to the scheme with powerful illuminations.

Decorations surrounded the City Hall, on Washington avenue, on Broadway, and on Liberty street. Thence to the south, along Fifth, Fourth and Third streets, Everett avenue, Second and Williams streets, Winnisimmett, Bellingham and Pearl streets, the color display is featured. Everywhere to-day one met happy colors and merry faces, indicating a brightly optimistic city which is intent not only on bettering itself but of enjoying to the utmost Chelsea's many advantages.

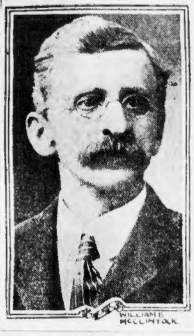
All roads led to Chelsea to-day. Incoming trolleys and trains brought hundreds of visitors, attracted by the widespread advertisement that has been given the exposition. The Boston & Northern ran special cars to accommodate the crowds. Hundreds came from Lynn to see the sights, while larger numbers came from Boston and other cities.

The advertising methods used by the citizens' committee were thoroughly progressive and up-to-date. Postcards, stickers, invitations and posters were scattered all over the country. Every letter mailed in Chelsea during the past two months, whether by business firm or private citizen, has borne the "Made in Chelsea" stickers. Results of this general campaign of advertising the merits of the city have already become apparent in the receipt of letters by the committees from all parts of the United States, bringing congratulations to Chelsea for its progressiveness and wishes for the success of the exposition.

One of the more striking posters is that seen all over Greater Boston, and headed with the words, "Made in Chelsea." These are seen in the street cars, railroad stations, in the store windows and attract attention. In appearance the poster is striking.

The Review Club of Chelsea has sent out invitations announcing it will keep open house for all former residents of Chelsea who revisit the city during the exposition.

W. E. M'CLINTOCK, HEAD OF CHELSEA CITY GOVERNMENT



Those Who Seek Slimness

FIVE BALLOONS BATTLING FOR WORLD HONORS

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 20.—Five balloons, two Swiss, two German and one United States, are still fighting for the honors of the international race, which started from St. Louis on Monday. Vague and conflicting reports were received from various parts of Southern Canada to-day that others had descended.

According to the best information obtainable, the following balloons were aloft to-day:

Azurea (Switzerland), Messmer, pilot; Helvetia (Switzerland), Col. Schaeck pilot; Dusseldorf II (Germany), Hans Gericke pilot; America II (United States), Alan Hawley pilot; Germania (Germany), Hugo von Abercron pilot.

Fear was expressed that some of the ballons had landed in inaccessible parts of Ontario, perhaps, in the mountain regions, where the aeronauts were in danger of death.

The balloons which are out of the race are:

Million Club (United States), landed near Racine, Wis.; Condor (France), landed near Two Rivers, Wis.; St. Louis No. IV (United States), landed near Hillman, Mich.; Harburg III (Germany), landed near Nipissing, Ont.; Isle de France (France), landed near Ponamasing, Ont.

It is believed that a new world's record is being established, which will stand for many years.

800 GUESTS OF SALEM CADETS

SALEM, Oct. 20.—More than 800 active and veteran members of the Second Corps Cadets and guests, including Governor Draper, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Congressman Gardner and over one hundred prominent men from all over the State, sat at the tables in the new Cadets' Armory at the banquet which brought to a close an elaborate celebration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the corps.

PERFECT WOMAN OF THE FUTURE WILL BE SPINSTER

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—The celibate professional woman of future generations will represent the highest type of civilization, a perfection in mind and body, and will far surpass the woman of the present age, according to theories expounded by Professor C. W. Woodworth, head of the division of entomology at the University of California. He declares that one-tenth of the present female population of the world could, as mothers, perpetuate the race, and argues the benefits of fewer mothers and larger families.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

CHIEF HAMILTON DENIES BRIBERY

SALEM, Oct. 20.—James A. Hamilton chief engineer of the Lawrence Fire Department, on trial for alleged bribery of members of the Lawrence City Government, to-day continued his emphatic denials of every charge made against him. All the charges are lies, he declares.

He was on the stand at adjournment having for the greater part of two hours been subjected to cross-examination by District Attorney Peters of Haverhill.

Among the witnesses testifying against Hamilton, was Samuel Kress, who is serving time in the House of Correction in the Lawrence bribery cases. Kress was a carriage manufacturer and testified to loaning Hamilton $100, which he saw the defendant put into three envelopes, saying one was for Morse, one for Woekel and one for Legeadre. He himself got nothing but knew he was to get the city work.

A FEW DOSES END KIDNEY MISERY AND MAKE LAME BACKS FEEL FINE.

Whether old or young, no man or woman can make a mistake by taking a good kidney medicine any time.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder or feel a dull, constant ache in the back, sides or loins, or the urine is full of sediment or thick, cloudy and offensive, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin taking Pape's Diuretic, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure.

The time to cure kidney trouble is while it is only trouble—before it settles into Dropsy, Gravel, Bright's Disease or Diabetes.

Pape's Diuretic acts directly upon the kidneys, bladder and urinary system; heals, cleanses, vitalizes and regulates these organs, ducts and glands and completes the cure usually within a few days.

Lame back, painful stitches, rheumatism, prostatic trouble, nervous headache, dizziness, irritability, sleeplessness, inflamed or puffy eyelids, bilious stomach or weak, worn-out, tired feeling and other symptoms caused by sluggish, inactive kidneys disappear. Uncontrollable, smarting, frequent urination (especially at night) and all bladder misery ends.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will vouch for the responsibility of Pape, Thompson & Pape of Cincinnati, who prepare Pape's Diuretic—50 cent treatment—sold by every druggist in the world.

WIRELESS HISTORY MADE BY WELLMAN AIRSHIP AND STEAMER

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Walter Wellman will brave death again in another attempt to cross the Atlantic by airship. He made this announcement today. He stated that he and Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer of the America, would begin work at once on plans for another air craft in which they intends to make another dash for Europe.

"Our voyage on the America showed us where we were at fault, and in our second airship we will map out an entirely different kind of craft," said Mr. Wellman. "The balloon will be of different shape and we will eliminate several things that we found of no material use."

Wellman said that he and Vaniman had received several offers to lecture, which they would accept, and then formulate the plans for a second voyage. He received many telegrams and cablegrams from aeronautic societies all over the world congratulating him and his party on their attempt. While talking to the reporter a cablegram arrived from the Aero Club of France.

To-night Wellman and his crew and the Trent will go to the theatre. The cat which was rescued from the balloon will be one of the party.

Wellman and Vaniman will make their flight next Summer, leaving probably in August. Plans will soon be under way for a money raising campaign to build and equip a new balloon. As Wellman's former backers are willing to help him, no difficulty is expected.

Great Wireless Triumph.

Wireless telegraphy now has a brand new record, for the wireless messages passing between the steamship Trent and the Wellman airship America were the very first of their kind. They tell in flashes the story of the peril of Wellman and his crew, and as compiled by Jack Irwin, the operator, are as follows:

Trent—Do you want our assistance?

America—Yes, come at once. In distress. We are drifting. Not under control.

Trent—What do you want us to do?

America—Come ahead full speed, but keep astern, as we have a heavy tail.

Trent—O. K. Am standing by wireless in case of trouble.

America—You will pick us up at daylight. You will be better able to see us then.

America—Come in close and put bow of your ship under us, as we will drop a line. But do not stop your ship as you will capsize us.

America—Who are you and where are you bound for?

Trent—Steamship Trent for New York.

Expected to Capsize.

America—Have one of your boats ready to launch, as we will probably capsize when we launch our boat.

Trent—O. K. Boat manned.

Trent—Are we gaining on you?

America—Yes. We are getting ready to launch.

Trent—Should we stop for you?

America—Don't stop. We will drop a sea anchor and try to check our ship.

America—We have a motor going above me. Can't hear your signals now. Will say when I can. We are pumping air into the airship, ready to bring her down level.

Trent—We are going full speed, waiting for your orders.

America—We are going to launch boat. Stand by to pick us up.

This ended the exchange of wireless messages.

The little gray kitten which sailed on the America as mascot has returned to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, and is now hailed the kitten of the most unique experience in the history of the race.

The kitten's adventure did not make her wholly free from fright, as she scratched at those who came near her on the tug and clung to Mr. Vaniman, and later to Mrs. Vaniman, hiding her head in the folds of the latter's cloak. With the Vanimans she seemed perfectly at home and was quiet, but of strangers she was in deadly fear.

Howled in Bad Weather.

The cat's odd experience began fifteen minutes out, when Mr. Vaniman decided it would be cruel to take her along and lowered her in a bag to the launch, which was unable to pick her up or tell what was in the bag, as it disappeared instantly in the fog. After that they hauled her back aboard and she became a prophet of the foul weather periods. Mr. Vaniman said she always howled when bad times were ahead and slept quietly through the good sailing.

She rode quietly through Monday in the life boat, "washing her face" in the fog, and Tuesday morning was slipped into an air compartment in the boat for safekeeping during the launching of the life boat. Once aboard the Trent she was fished out of the air compartment, where she was found sleeping peacefully.

LARGE BATCH OF IMPORTANT REALTY SALES

A big batch of important properties, both city and suburban, were reported sold in the real estate market today, these including the estate at No. 143 Kingston street, extending through to No. 28 Edinboro street, near Beach street, which has been purchased by Mildred C. Howes from Josephine N. Cox. It comprises a one-story brick building and 1574 square feet of land, all taxed for $32,000, of which $26,800 is on the land.

In the West End the three and one-half story brick building and 1,648 square feet of land at No. 23 Allen street, near Charles street, all assessed for $15,000, of which $5,500 is on the land, have been sold by Bessie Cummon to Jacob Schwartz.

In the Back Bay a lot of land on Hemenway street, near Huntington avenue, containing 1,120 square feet and taxed for $2,300, has been purchased by Thomas A. Forsyth from the Old South Building Associates.

Rebecca Simons has sold to Antonio DiSciullo the three-story and basement brick house and 815 square feet of land, all taxed for $5,800, at No. 74 Carver street, near Pleasant street, South End.

One of the largest apartment house sales of the year in the Brighton district has just been closed whereby the modern four three-apartment houses, situated at Nos. 7-17 Strathmore road, near the Brookline line, all assessed for $84,800, of which $9,800 is on the 16,357 square feet of land, has been sold by George B. Jefferey of Medford to George T. Cruft of Boston. The brokers were Houghton & Rich, representing the grantee, and Guy D. Tobey of the Easton Building, representing the grantor.

An important sale has just been closed in Winthrop whereby the land on which formerly stood the "Crest Hall" property at the corner of Crest and Ocean avenues, containing 16,449 square feet, assessed for approximately $16,000, has been sold by George T. Cruft of Boston to George B. Jefferey of Medford, who will improve the property. The brokers were Houghton & Rich, representing the grantor, and Guy D. Tobey of the Easton building, representing the grantee.

James H. Brennan, No. 31 State street, has sold at auction for Andrew F. Poole, mortgagee, an estate on Pearl street, Brookline, to George D. Burrage, the price paid being $8,700. The property comprises a large frame building with 8,600 square feet of land, there being sixteen tenements. There is a total rating of $12,500.

Through the Roslindale office of Robert T. Fowler, the estate at No. 70 Montello street has been sold by August L. and Rosa Heselschwerdt to Johan L. Johnson. The property consists of a three family frame dwelling and 5,550 square feet of land. The estate is taxed for $7,200, but the purchase price was much in excess of this valuation. The new owner buys for occupancy and investment.

Thomas O. McEnaney has sold for Mack Quine his three-apartment house of eleven rooms, with 1,000 feet of land at No. 51 Havre street, East Boston. This is a frame dwelling and situated near Maverick street, and the Tunnel. The new owner, Helen L. Haggarty, buys for investment. It is assessed for $2,800.

William K. Porter has leased for a long term of years the entire building, No. 201 State street, to the English Tea Room, inc., who will occupy the same upon completion of extensive alterations for kitchen and warehouse purposes. This lease was negotiated through the office of Whitcomb & Company.

The entire top floor in the Beebe building, 240-260 Dover street, containing approximately 8,000 square feet, has been leased for a long term through the office of Whitcomb & Co. from E. Pierson Beebe et al, trustees, to George Adams, who will occupy the same for his business as the Union Steam Sponging Works.

The parcel of land on the northerly side of Northern avenue, with frontage on the harbor, has been leased to the J. W. Hammond Company, who are to erect a building thereon for their own use. This lease was negotiated through the office of Whitcomb & Company.

Mrs. Emerson, the grantee in the above transactions, also conveys title in two lots of land located near the above, each lot containing 11,000 square feet; one located on South avenue is sold to Helen S. Brown of Medfield, and the other on Bailey's Causeway, to Ida E. Davidson of Boston, who intends to immediately erect a Summer home for next season's occupancy. George A. Dill of the Tremont building was the broker in the foregoing transactions.

SCOUTS MAKE BIG GAINS IN BRIDGEPORT

In no city of New England has the American Boy Scout made greater progress than in the city of Bridgeport, Ct. Scoutmaster Frank E. Maitland has not only organized many patrols there, but has the support of a number of the most representative citizens of Bridgeport.

On August 1, Scoutmaster Maitland sent his first patrol to the Department of New England Headquarters for registration. A month later the Quartermaster General of the State gave the American Boy Scouts of Bridgeport permission to use the Armory without rental, but stipulated that they must pay for the gas.

"I want to say," said Scoutmaster Maitland, in writing about his work with the boys, "I never met with such a quick response to requests as has met me everywhere in his movement. We have yet to receive our first set-back. When it comes it will find us all together."

Receive Beautiful Flag.

The boys are assembled once a week at the Armory, where they are drilled under competent drillmasters.

In the early part of October a meeting was held by a number of prominent citizens in the chambers of the Hon. Edward P. Nobbs, Judge of the Probate Court. A committee was formed to advance the scope and interest of the American Boy Scout in the locality of Bridgeport.

Two days later the first troop had a beautiful flag given to it by Mrs. Charles Armstrong, a daughter of the American Revolution. Her son, who is ten years old and a Seal Scout, made the presentation, and the standard of colors has been very much appreciated. A week ago last Sunday the boys took their first hike into the hills. They walked seventeen miles, taking their rations along and cooked and prepared them under instruction.

Scoutmaster Maitland has arranged a great reception for Sergeant Major Edwin Randolph Short. He will give a lecture for the American Boy Scouts of Bridgeport on the evening of October 25 in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Form Pioneer Patrol.

Hardly less interesting was the report from the city of Fall River that the pioneer patrol had been formed there during the week. Mrs. E. G. Shay has given the Scouts of "Patrol Walnut," as the boys have named their first patrol, the use of a rear room in the basement of some property she owns at No. 791 Walnut street. The boys in "Patrol Walnut" range from ten to sixteen years of age. They go twice a week for a day's hike and exploration into the neighboring woods, and every evening, under the supervision of a Spanish War Veteran who has been under fire, they are given instruction in marching and the ways of camp life. It is the first regularly organized patrol in the city of Fall River, but sixty applications from that city from boys in different parts of Fall River are registered at the New England Headquarters. These boys will at once be organized into patrols.

HUNT A FIREBUG OUT IN WELLESLEY

As the result of many incendiary fires in Wellesley during the last few months the selectmen announced that they would offer a reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest of the persons setting the fires.

The firemen were called out twice Tuesday for incendiary fires. One occurred in the pit adjoining the Boston & Albany railroad at Wellesley Farms and the other occurred in the woods off Linden street.

GARMENT WEEK AT HOUSTON'S

Garment week, an innovation introduced to the shoppers of Boston by the James A. Houston Company and now in progress at their store, has been received with great enthusiasm by their customers. A feature of the plan is the changing of values for each successive day. With this fact in view the crowds at their store are apt to continue for the rest of the week.

The success of the innovation has grown each year. Some time ago the plan of devoting an entire week for this purpose twice a year was devised by the Houston management. Since this time it has occurred regularly with increasing success.

The garments offered during the week are of the usual high quality at unusual prices. They include ready-for-wear apparel for women, misses, children and infants. The display takes the entire store.

RHEINGRAF DOCKS SAFELY AT HAVANA

The steamship Rheingraf has reached Havana, several days overdue, and anxiety for her is at an end. She ran into the hurricane which has ravaged the West Indies and fears were felt for her safety. To-day a cablegram was received from Captain Hoer at the office of the Havana line in this city. The steamship sailed from Boston on October 10 and was due in Havana on Sunday night.

IS A PIG A NUISANCE?

Alleging that pigs are a nuisance, the Stoneham Board of Health, through its counsel, Luther Hill, in the equity motion session of the Suffolk Superior Court today, asked for an injunction against John Doherty of Stoneham to restrain him from keeping 225 pigs inside the limits of the town and from carrying half the swill of the city of Melrose into Stoneham for the pigs as he has been wont to do.

SIX ARE KILLED BY EXPLOSION

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Six persons were killed, three are missing and probably dead, and twelve were seriously hurt by a boiler explosion at the Jute Mills of the American Manufacturing Company at Greenpoint, L. I., to-day. The plant was wrecked. Those killed were all on the first floor of the building. The boiler burst and part of its heavy iron cover tore away a large section of the first floor. The missing are believed to be buried in the debris.

The plant belongs to the cordage trust and is the largest of the kind in America. In a four-story building adjoining the boiler room 2,000 girls and 1,000 men were working at the time of the explosion. They made a wild stampede for the street, trampling upon one another as they ran down the stairways. Some of the girls climbed down fire escapes.

A BOLD STEP

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broad-cast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines.

Thus Dr. Pierce has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits and placed them in a class all by themselves by making them remedies OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same.

From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

Whole Nation Mourns as Funeral Honors Are Paid Julia Ward Howe

REV. DR. ELIOT OFFICIATES AT SERVICES IN CHURCH OF THE DISCIPLES.

Channing Memirial Church of Newoptr, who assisteid at the funeral service.

The casket was put into a mahogany box on the train, with a wreath of lilies resting on the box.

The party arrived at Back Bay Station at 11:32. The body was taken directly to the Chucr of the Disciples.

The doors of the church were opened at 1 o'clock. Seats were reserved for the representatives of the numerous clubs and societies to which Mrs. Howe had belonged or which sent delegations to the church, even if she was not joined with theme.

Dr. Jones Opens Services.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D., president of the American Unitarian Association, assisted by Dr. Jones of Newport.

The service began with organ prelude. Then Dr. Jones read the following opening sentences from the burial service:

"I am the Resurrection and the Life, saith the Lord; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shal he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. All flesh is grass, and all the godliness thereof is as the flower of the field; the grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it.

"The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God will stand forever. Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him, for He knoweth our frame, He remembereth that we are dust. We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain that we carry nothing out. The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Blind Children Sing Anthem.

An anthem was sung by children from the Perkins Institution for the Blind, of which Mrs. Howe's husband, the late Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, was superintendent for years.

Dr. Eliot read selections from the Scripture. A hymn was sung. Dr. Jones offered prayer, which was in part:

"We rejoice in the memory of a true-hearted child of thine, whose constant endeavor was to work for thee and with thee. We are filled with deep and lasting gratitude for this life which imparted good cheer and breathed courage and sent out sympathy and went forth in love. We remember, before three, her many helpful words and deeds, her friendliness and good will, her joy in service, her patience in difficulties, her faith in affliction, her glad surrender to the Holy Will. We recall in thy presence the high faith which ever issued in deep faithfulness, her joy in living, so marked in this thy servant, the zeal for thy church and thy humanity, which was like a consuming flame. Here to-day we raise our psalm of thanksgiving, for the life whose unquenchable ardor of spirit made her never wearing in well doing."

Dr. Eliot's Sermon.

"I Know Where My Redeemer Liveth" was sung by Mme Kileski. Then Dr. Eliot delivered the funeral oration, as follows:

"This is not the time or place for studied eulogy, nor can any single voice express the depth of feeling that has drawn this company together. We are gathered here simply to bring our tributet of gratitude and reverence. Each one of us has some particular reason for grateful appreciation, but whatever may be the separate and individual ties that have bound us in love and honor to Mrs. Howe, all of us alike share the impression of the richness and abundance of her nature and the prodigality of her gifts.

"The Scripture phrase which one thinks of in connection with this life is the word of the Master, 'I am come that ye may have life and have it more abundantly.' This is a careed that speaks to us of ripeness and richness of experience, of completed roundness of character and achievement of rare gifts nobly used. Here was a life rich in aspiration and accomplishment, rich in love given and received, rich in widespread and penetrating influence, a life radiant with encouragement to the end.

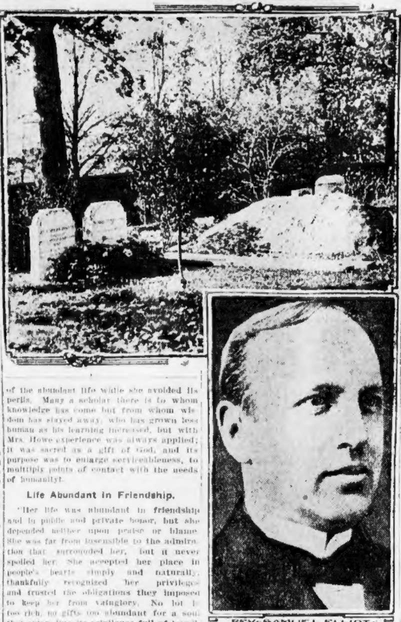
"She passed through the changeful experiences of more than ninety fruitful years—the happy days of sheltered childhood, the years of brilliant and beautiful youth, the sacred obligations of wife and mother, the varied experiences of her ceaseless philanthropic labors, the fascinating diversity of social relationships, the applause of listening thousands, the accumulated honors of age. She enriched our literature. She fired patriotism. She upbuilt our ideals alike of domestic fidelity and happiness and of public spirited service.

Interested in All Things.

"She was interested in everything, in nature, in events, in persons, in causes, in truth. She loved the New England landscape and delightedly explored the mysterious processes of the world of nature, its beautiful adaptations, its precise and orderly laws. She was interested in the welfare of all her fellow beings, ready to rejoice with the glad, eager to help the down-trodden and oppressed everywhere. She was interested in philosophy and pursued truth all her days, calmly but eagerly. She had confidence that sustained her in all the vicissitudes of experience. She had confidence in goodness, in its reality, its permanence, its power to conquer evil. She had confidence in love as the supreme reality.

"She believed in conscientious work and never despaired of a cause because it was unpopular. She had an overflowing sympathy, broad as humanity, including white and black, Greek and Armenian, bond and free. Her mind was affirmative. She said "yes" more often than she said "no." She had faith, not opinions or dead beliefs, but faith—a faith which saw God present in nature, present in Providence, present in the souls of men, which found Him in all changes, in all joys and sorrows, in the immediate duty of the hour, in the large visions of the ages.

"Mrs. Howe enjoyed all the privileges of the abundant life while she avoided its perils. Many a scholar there is to whom knowledge has come but from whom wisdom has stayed away, who has grown less human as his learning increased, but with Mrs. Howe experience was always applied; it was sacred as a gift of God, and its purpose was to enlarge serviceableness, to multiply points of contact with the needs of humanityt.



REV. SAMUEL ELIOT.

Grave of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe in Mount Auburn Cemetery, and the Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, who preaches eulogy at her funeral today.

Life Abundant in Friendship.

"Her life was abundant in friendship and in public and private honor, but she depended neither upon praise or blame. She was far from insensible to the admiration that surrounded her, but it never spoiled her. She accepted her place in people's hearts simply and naturally, thankfully recognized her privileges and trusted the obligations they imposed to keep her from vainglory. No lot is too rich, no gifts too abundant for a soul that enters into its privileges full of humility before God, love for humanity and deep desire of helpfulness.

"She lived always in the inspiration of great convictions and with a happy trust in the heart of the Universe. But her spiritual gifts were not luxuries for her own use, but trusts for her fellowmen. Her thought each day was not what the world could do for her, but what she could do for the world.

"She found the joy of life in the use of her rare endowments. Hers was the gift of humor. Many a cloud was driven away by the bright spirit of laughter. Hers was the gift of bounteous, all-embracing hospitality of mind, and heart, and home. She had a real democracy of soul which counted nothing human as foreign to her. Hers was the gift of interpretation. She knew how to turn sight into insight. She could discover the possibilities of poetry in the meanest events and emergencies. Hers was the gift of communication, the power of solving and persuasive speech. She transmitted that which she received. She could say in her prayer, 'The glory thou hast given me, I have given to them.'

Mrs. Howe's Richest Joy.

"She found the rewards of life in life itself, in the enrichment of experience, the new opportunities of attainment and service. Her good obtained was only tidings of something better. The richest joy of her life was the discovery of her capacity to inspire and impart life.

"Too often we have been told that the Christian life is one of renunciation and self-denial, the giving up of pleasures, or of freedom of thought and action. That was not her way of looking at things. The Christian ideal to her was not one of negation, but of appreciation, not of renunciation, but of the use of the gifts of God. Religion to her meant not subtraction, but addition, not diminution of power, but multiplication of freedom and power and joy. To accept the privilege of life with an alert body, an open mind, a sensitive imagination, and a steadfast will, that was to her the Father's business in which she had a partnership.

"I think not only of the abundance of this life, but of its perfect poise; a quality which grows more and more beautiful as we tire of the fantastic and one-sided types of character which the world often admires. Here was not only fulness of life, but symmetry of life. She was expectant without impatience, progressive, but always ready to wait; full of confidence, but never arrogant; serene, but enthusiastic.

"So much of the noblest life disappoints us with its partialness. So many people we admire are great only upon certain sides and in other aspects are comparatively small. The more do we value a human life rich and full and strong all around. Here was a life where the length and breadth and height were equal. By length of life I do not mean its mere duration, but the reaching on and out of a soul on the lines of its special powers, the impulse of a life toward the ends that it was meant to serve.

Secret of Vitality.

"The breadth of a life is its outreach to human sympathy, and the height of a life is its reach upward, its consciousness of divine realities, its sense of communion with the commission from God. Length without breadth may be hard and narrow; breadth without length may be thin and shallow; length and breadth without height may be flat and unprofitable. Here was a soul which conceived distinct purposes, yet which found in its earnest effort to fulfill its own career the interpretation of the careers of other souls, and the transfiguration of its own experience.

"The secret of her amazing vitality and widespread usefulness was that she kept always in contact with the real and permanent sources of power. The dynamic of duty and faith and love worked through her. The subtle mystery of the life eternal flowed through her nature and her experience out into the complicated mechanism of the life of the world about her.

"With glad hearts we have all remarked the exceptional vitality of her powers in old age. That meant simply that she had begun to live the eternal life here and now, the kind of life that does not decay or change, the life which is not merely future existence, but present renewal in the spirit.

"Not long ago she said to her beloved minister, Dr. Ames: 'The lower I drain the cup of life the sweeter it grows. All the sugar is at the bottom.' Her graceful verse repeats the same satisfaction:

"I have made a voyage upon a golden river,
'Neath clouds of opal and of amethyst.
Along its banks bright shapes were moving ever,
And threatening shadows melted into mist.

"My journey nears its close—in some still haven
My bark shall find its anchorage of rest.
When the kind hand, which every good has given,
Opening with wider grace, shall give the best."

The benediction by Dr. Eliot closed the service.

Altar Banked with Flowers.

The altar was banked with flowers. Some of those sending flowers were: Mayor Fitzgerald, Governor Draper, Mr. and Mrs. Timothee Adamowski, Mrs. John L. Gardner, Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, Perkins Institute of the Blind, Mrs. Roger P. Wolcott, Home Club of East Boston, Mrs. Charles Henry Ward of New Jersey, Boston Authors' Club, New England Women's Club, Beneficient Society, New England Conservatory of Music, Women's Rest Cure Association, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Chanler and other people and organizations. Several Greek, Italian and Armenian societies sent wreaths, with the colors of their country intermingled with the Stars and Stripes.

The burial at the Howe family lot in Mt. Auburn Cemetery was private. There were eight pallbearers. Five were grandsons of Mrs. Howe: John Richards, Henry Hall Richards, John Howe Hall, Henry Marion Hall and Samuel Prescott Hall. The other three, husbands of Mrs. Howe's granddaughters, were Rev. Hugh Birckhead, Charles Wiggin and Carlton Shaw.

At the grave the Episcopal burial service was read by the Rev. Hugh Birkhead. As the service was ended, John M. Flockton, department bugler of Massachusetts Department, G. A. R., sounded "Taps" over the grave.

Children Pay Tribute.

Among the thousands paying their tribute to Mrs. Howe are 92,000 Boston school children. Half-hour exercises in memory of the woman whose life is such a shining example are held in the public schools of the city to-day. Mayor Fitzgerald wrote to David A. Ellis, chairman of the School Board, yesterday, recommending that the schools take some suitable observance of the funeral occasion. Mr. Ellis forwarded this letter to Stratton D. Brooks, superintendent of Schools. Mr. Brooks thereupon sent the following circular letter to the masters of the schools:

"You are requested to hold such exercises in your schools as may seem suitable to you in commemoration of the life of the late Mrs. Julia Ward Howe."

Mr. Brooks appended to the circular copies of the Mayor's letter of suggestion.

The time for preparation was brief. But all the schools held exercises of some kind, either in their assembly hall or in individual class rooms. Sketches of the life and achievements of Mrs. Howe were read. Her undying composition: "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," was naturally a favored item of the exercises.

Honored by the Greeks.

The Hellenic Association of Boston, whose membership includes the leading Greek residents of the city will send two representatives to the funeral. The two representatives are V. A. Zorbas and C. B. Tsagris. The association supports the Greek Church on Winchester street. The school connected with the church was closed yesterday, to remain closed till next Monday. The school flag is at half-mast.

The tributes are to both Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and to her late husband, Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, whose heroic efforts in behalf of the Greek revolutionary patriots endeared him to the liberty loving Hellenes.

Another example of the international veneration accorded both Dr. and Mrs. Howe occurred at Oak Glen Tuesday when a score of Portuguese boys and girls, children of South Portsmouth farmers, came to the house and asked to see Mrs. Howe.

"What can we do for you, children?" they were asked.

"We wish to see Mrs. Howe," said the spokesman.

"But there is no Mrs. Howe any more," they were told.

The spokesman replied: "We wish to see the one that was Mrs. Howe."

"But she is dead."

"We wish to see her just the same."

This privilege had to be denied the childish delegation, but the members of Mrs. Howe's family were deeply touched at this evidence of love and respect among children of the foreign-born.

12 NEAR DEATH IN AVALANCHE

ROCKLAND, Me., Oct. 20.—The largest avalanche in the history of the local limerock industry took place south of the Pleasant street iron bridge when a mass of earth and limerock, estimated at 100,000 tons, fell from the eastern cliff of one of the Blackington farm quarries.

But fifteen minutes before the cavein four men had been working on the edge of the cliff and eight others were in the quarry beneath.

It was on this bridge that President Taft stood only a few weeks ago, looking into the largest limerock quarry in the world.

LAWRENCE ATTACKS HOLDING COMPANY

William B. Lawrence of Medford, who has opposed the control of the Boston & Maine by the New Haven since the proposition was first broached, to-day attacked the Boston Holding Company, in a letter sent to the Railroad Commissioners to be read at a hearing held by them today. The hearing was on the petition of the holding company for permission to issue $20,012,000 worth of stock to be exchanged for their outstanding bonds of that amount.

His Landlady's Advice Probably Saved His Life

I feel that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my life. I inherited weak kidneys. Very often my urine was bloody and the discharge so frequent and painful that I would have to stay in bed to obtain temporary relief. I consulted good physicians, but the results were disappointing. My landlady advised me to try Swamp-Root as the last resort, which I did, and I was quickly relieved.

I continued taking Swamp-Root and my weight has increased fifty pounds. My health is of the best and I have told many others about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and hape done a lot of good in this way. Your wonderful medicine is of great value to mankind.

Yours very truly,
J. H. BRUXBY.

AUTO TRUCK CONTEST ON TO-MORROW

By J. C. KERRISON.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will, at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning, give the word that will start the first truck on its way as a competitor in the BOSTON AMERICAN Commercial Motor Vehicle Reliability Run. At thirty-second intervals, other cars will follow, until something like fifty motor trucks are on their way to Newburyport, competing for the trophies offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

This will be the greatest aggregation of commercial motor vehicles that has ever been seen in the city of Boston,—or, for that matter, in the far East.

The success which has attended the efforts of the BOSTON AMERICAN, and the committee in charge of the run to demonstrate to the business men of the world the practicability of the truck in a commercial manner, is unprecedented.

It has resulted in no less than forty-seven competing and six official cars being entered for this great educational tour—a tour which cannot have but a wholesome effect upon the business of the near future. It is hoped by this tour to furnish the merchants with a convincing argument of the advisability of the use of motor trucks in their business. It is a business proposition, pure and simple, and is but a slight indication of the great things that can be anticipated in the future. It shows far better than can any other means the trend of motoring affairs.

It presages the coming of the motor truck in as great, if not greater, number as the touring car is to-day, and its passage and results will be closely followed by every one who is interested in the great question of transportation.

In designing this run, the BOSTON AMERICAN did so for the sole purpose of educating, in so far as it could, the business interests of New England, and in the formulation of its rules the chief thing taken into consideration was to give the cars a test which should be as similar as possible to the conditions which will arise in actual business affairs. The rules are clear, concise and practical, and require nothing more from a car than what can be expected. In fact, they are by no means as exacting as they might be. They hold the entrant within the reasonable bounds, and instead of placing a premium on exceptional efforts, or performances, they virtually say that you shall do no more in the way of weight-carrying that is specified in your catalogue, and, too, despite the fact that every effort has been made to induce the committee to permit the overloading of trucks.

This committee, consisting of Louis R. Speare, Harry W. Knights, A. D. Peck and E. A. Gilmore, has been particularly active in laying out the rules, route, conditions, and other detail, the result being a finished whole, and everything in readiness for the start of the run from Cottage Farms bridge to-morrow morning.

Referee Knights will, at the meeting this evening, assume entire jurisdiction over the test, and the AMERICAN'S duty, in so far as any control over the same, will have ceased.

When viewed from the standpoint of the list of entries, the run takes precedence of all others that have been held in this country. There are some forty-seven actual entries, and every one of these is a motor truck in every sense of the word, being constructed solely and purely for the purpose of carrying merchandise.

There has been one run held in this country with a larger list of entries, but that run included electric vehicles as well as those of the gasoline variety; but as to the actual number of gasoline trucks competing, did not equal the number to be found in the BOSTON AMERICAN run of to-morrow. Then again, many of the trucks in the other run were reconstructed touring car chassis—chassis that had done service as pleasure vehicles, and which had been turned over into commercial trucks in order to meet the exigency of the occasion.

It is a matter of congratulation to the committee in charge that there is not a single one of the above kind of motor vehicles entered. Every one is catalogued, either as a delivery wagon, or as a truck of stated capacity.

In no previous runs has there been entered three five-ton trucks, and in that department at least Boston outranks them all, there being that number entered for the contest to-morrow. The three and four-ton class is another exceptionally well entered, while cars from one and a half to two tons has not less than nine entries, and the still lighter class has more than that, while the light 1,000 pounds capacity or less, has seven.

These entries came from all sections of the country, some from Detroit, Lansing, Buffalo and Philadelphia, while the local dealer has certainly supported the proposition in a most magnificent manner, which is accounted for by the remarks of no less than three of the dealers, to the effect that they owe it to themselves to enter this contest. The business men, as a whole, were keenly alive to the possibilities of the same, and several prospective customers had informed them that they would make no decision as to the purchase of a motor truck until they knew the results of the BOSTON AMERICAN contest.

Eight in Private Owners' Class.

In the private owners' class there have been entered eight trucks, the great majority of which are one and one-half tons, there being one three, and one two and one-half ton truck. These cars are all entered by merchants who are using them in their business. They are entered by the enterprising house of Henry Siegel Company, which entered an Auto Car that is to be taken off its regular run to compete in this tour and demonstrate to its competitors that the day of motor trucks for the delivery of system of such large and enterprising houses has arrived.

In close competition with Henry Siegel is John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, who has sent on from that city the Auto Car truck which won second place in the Philadelphia reliability contest. This truck was driven over the road from Philadelphia by Mr. Thatcher, leaving on Monday and arriving in Boston yesterday. Mr. Thatcher made an excellent run and said that he considered that nothing more or less than an exercise gallop for the Auto Car.

It is a noticeable fact that among the list of private owners, are no less than three express companies, who have thought sufficient of the test to withdraw their trucks from their regular service and compete in this event.

Another truck to come over the road was the Victor truck entered in Class C, which left Buffalo on Monday and was driven by C. E. Shaw over the road to Boston, arriving here this morning. Mr. Shaw had an exceptionally good run, made not the slightest adjustment and is thoroughly enthusiastic over his experience. He said: "I will not tell you how little or how much gasoline I used, but if I do as well in the contest of to-morrow and Saturday, one of those AMERICAN prizes will surely go back to Buffalo."

Lauds Contestants.

T. Ross Lippard of the Victor Motor Truck Company, who arrived in town yesterday, spoke in high words of praise of the quality of the contestants. He unqualifiedly stated that it was the best ever in point of character that he had ever seen. He considered it a representative list, and felt confident that no matter what trucks win, it would demonstrate to the business men of New England the absolute reliability, practicability and economy of motor trucks for use in general business lines.

W. J. McInnes of the Rapid Motor Truck Company arrived in town yesterday and after looking over the list of entries, and inspecting the details and arrangements that had been perfected, said: "It can't be beat. We shall have in the run the identical truck which has made every Glidden tour for the past three years, and climbed Pike's Peak and showed the Rapid way. We figure that we have as good a chance to win this contest as any truck entered, and shall do our best to take the trophies back with us."

Sales-Manager Cumner, of the Auto Car Company of Philadelphia, has keen interest in the run, as there are two Auto cars entered.

The committee has decided that each car entered shall carry its maximum load as per its catalogued specifications. All vehicles carrying more than the maximum load, will not receive credit for the same in the computation of the data that determines the final award. To permit trucks to carry an overload and to credit them with the same in computing the cost, was felt to put a premium on the overloading of trucks, and it being the intention of the run to prove that cars can perform the functions per their catalogue rating, the committe feels duty bound to take this attitude.

The weighing of the cars empty will be started at one o'clock this afternoon at the Haymarket Square station. H. C. Davis of this city, who for the past nineteen years has been the city weigher, will perform the function. A. D. Peck, representing the contest board, will be present and give to the cars their official insignias and numbers. Saturday morning, from seven to eight o'clock, the trucks will be weighed, loaded, at the same place, and observers will report to the committee there not later than seven o'clock, and the moment that the truck to which they are assigned is weighed, they will take position on the same and remain there until relieved by some member of the committee.

After being weighed, the trucks will proceed to Winthrop square, where at eight o'clock, preceded by the official cars, the line of march will be taken up to Cottage Farm's bridge. Here the trucks will be filled with gasoline and sent off on the trip.

The second weighing of the trucks will be at the Dole store scales at Old Town Green on the way to Ipswich on Saturday morning.

Charles E. Fay, a director of the Shronograph Club of Boston, has kindly consented to assume the entire management and control of the timing and checking at the different controls. This means that the duty will be well performed, and Referee Knight has turned the entire matter over to Director Fay, who will transport the timers in the Ford official car.

A meeting of the contestants and observers has been called at Hotel Lenox at 7:30 o'clock this evening, when the committee will announce the interpretation of any questionable rule, instruct the observers in their duty, and get things in readiness for the actual start on Friday morning.

MULLIN SEES FOUR STRAIGHT FOR ATHLETICS

By George Mullin.

Premier Pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, who has faced the Cubs in two world's series.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 20.—I really believe that Connie Mack will spring the greatest surprise of the 1910 world's championship series to-day. I look for him to come right back against the Cubs with Jack Coombs. Coombs won the game in Philadelphia. This despite the fact that he lacked control and was "forcing" his pitching up to the seventh inning. I do not mean by this that he was over exerting himself, but that he was trying to put too much on the ball, thereby lacking control.

During the past three weeks of the American League schedule, Coombs pitched only a few innings. He is a pitcher who needs to be worked very often to be effective. In the second game he showed plainly the bad effects of too much rest. Coombs should be in far better form to-day than he was in the game at Philadelphia. He is a pitcher who shows at his very best when he is working often.

That second struggle, after a long lay-off, should prove the finest kind of a workout and should put him in the finest fettle for a hard game here. Coombs and the Athletics are confident after Jack's victory over the Cubs, when he was not at his best, that if he lives up to expectations Chicago will find far classier pitching than that which Coombs showed on his own grounds.

Coombs is anxious to go right back at the Cubs. He is anxious to prove to the public that he was not at his best Tuesday. Every one familiar with Coombs knows that he should be better after one day's rest than if he waited three or four days.

Connie Mack gave me a quiet tip to-day that Coombs would surely work the first game here if the big fellow showed in preliminary practice that he had all his stuff at command. If Coombs does not show up well in practice, Eddie Plank will be pitted against the National League champions. This sterling southpaw, if right, should win his game easily.

If the Athletics win to-day, I look for them to win four straight. They will, in this case, fall back upon Chief Bender for Friday's game. Bender's work in the opening struggle was such a revelation to the Cubs that his very presence in another battle should go far toward determining the issue before it begins.

OLSON BEATS JIM M'LAUGHLIN

There was a genuine all-wool and a yard wide wrestling match at the Columbia last night between Nell Olson of Boston and Jim McLaughlin of Donegal, Ire. Olson won the match principally because of his greater weight and superior knowledge of the game, but the Irishman was not discredited, as he put up one of the gamest and cleanest bouts seen here for many a day. With a little more experience, McLaughlin says, he hopes to reverse the verdict of last night. As it was he made the big Swede step the limit, winning the second fall in nine minutes with a scissors and hammerlock, after Olson had taken the first fall in twelve minutes with a head over shoulder hold. Olson came back strong in the third bout and went after the Irishman's feet, and persisted in this method of attack until he secured a wicked toe hold from which it was impossible to escape. McLaughlin refused to quit until he was almost out from exhaustion.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

LUCAS DRAWS WITH MURPHY

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 20.—Mike Slattery's boxing club at Thornton reopened with a fifteen-round draw between Willie Lucas of Philadelphia and Eddie Murphy of South Boston.

The weight which the Boston lad carried over the Quaker was not sufficient to get him the decision, which the local patrons wanted to see most of all. In the other contests Miller won in the third in the go with Kid Carson. Young Joe Murphy was stopped in his warm fight with Young Bob Fitzsimmons.

YANKS-GIANTS SIXTH GAME NETS $6,044.50

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The receipts of the sixth game for the championship of Manhattan between the Giants and the Highlanders at American League Park were $6,044.50, of which sum the National Commission will receive $604.45, and the club owners $5,440.05. The number of paid admissions totalled 7462.

CUB FANS PUT CRAPE ON DOOR OF CLUB OWNER

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 20.—Disgruntled Cub fans who neither received reservations for the world's series games on the West Side nor their checks back stormed the offices of Charles W. Murphy in the Corn Exchange National Bank building in an effort to get some satisfaction. As has been the case for several days past, they found the door locked, but they had considerable amusement in gazing on the mourning decorations [illegible] the door of the Cub [illegible].

Some early [illegible] of sympathy [illegible] a bunch of crape, which was attached to the door securely [illegible] an ordinary [illegible]. After fruitless efforts [illegible] elevator men and others [illegible] the building gave up the [illegible] and left the scene of battle [illegible] strikers.

MACK LOOKS FOR THIRD WIN TO-DAY

By CONNIE MACK.

It looks as if we have the Cubs on the run, but I want to tell you I'm still knocking on wood. There's a heap of difference between playing at home and playing on the road, but I have every confidence in the boys and firmly believe we shall make it three straight in the game to-day. Mark my word, my boys will fight to the last ditch.

LAJOIE RETURNS MONEY.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—Napoleon Lajoie of the Cleveland American League team has mailed a certified check for $1,000 made out in his favor by D. A. Fletcher of Cincinnati, promoter of the All Star series, to August Herrmann, chairman of the National Baseball Commission, with a request that Herrmann return the check to the proper parties.

POLICE STOP BOUTS.

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 20.—The Lenox A. C. of this city has been ordered by the State police to call off all contemplated boxing matches. Several hundred members who had gathered at the club last night to witness bouts had their assessments refunded.

BOSTON MEN LOSE HEAVILY ON FAVORITE

A good-sized bunch of money was burned up on Prince Hampton, the local steeplechase horse, in the Patapsco stake at Pimlico, he being strongly fancied by the talent at 13 to 5.

It was a capital race with a field of eight going over the cross country course of two and a half miles, and for half of the journey Prince Hampton went a clever race, fencing cleanly and at the mile and a half flag he was close upon the leaders in third position.

At the ninth jump the local horse nearly fell in landing and almost threw Johnny Lynch, his rider. He recovered quickly but by this time Hazy, the winner, had the race at his mercy.

Prince Hampton sold at 2 to 1 at the opening, and was high at 13 to 5 and closed in the selling at the same figure. The weather was cloudy but a brilliant company of 5000 society people saw the Patapsco stake run.

Here in Boston Prince Hampton was declared certain to win by the wise men and they turned up several small wads in their support of the son of [illegible].

YOUNG LEONARD TO WRESTLE JIM BARNES

Young Leonard of Brooklyn, N. Y., has signed articles to wrestle Jim Barnes, former middleweight champion, in one of the preliminaries to the world contest between Dr. B. F. Roller of Seattle and John Perelli, the Italian heavyweight, at the Arena next Monday night. Leonard made a sensational showing July 4 against Peter Jack, the Greek, and is rated among the best of his weight in the country.

TOKIO, Oct. 20.—The baseball nine representing the University of Chicago, which is making a tour of Japan, added another victory to its list by again defeating the team from the University of Keio.

OLDFIELD WARS ON AUTO BOARD FOR BAN ORDER

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The contest board of the American Automobile Association has suspended Barney Oldfield and his managers, Pickens and Sloan, because Oldfield "committed a flagrant violation of the rules at a sanctioned meeting at Readville, Mass., on October 14, by intruding himself upon the track in his Benz racing car and without official start or timing made several circles of the track, in defiance of the warnings of officials."

It is further ordered by the contest board that Oldfield's 200-horse power Benz be disqualified from any sanctioned contest.

This action by the board is sort of a double disqualification in that Oldfield had previously been suspended for his announced intention of racing Jack Johnson. This race is held at Sheepshead Bay to-day.

Oldfield's manager issued this statement to-day:

"Just heard that American Automobile Association contest board to-day suspended Oldfield and myself for life. Here is our reply:

"Barney Oldfield will be driving automobiles in races in parts of America long after the American Automobile Association will have lost control of racing.

CHANCE CONFIDENT OF WINNING TO-DAY

By FRANK L. CHANCE.

We are in for a battle, but I think the tide will turn to-day. Now we have faced both of Mack's pitching stars and in the next games, if asked to face either Coombs or Bender, will be better prepared to hit their peculiar deliveries. If the Athletics beat us again I will be glad to take my hat off to the whole machine.

TRYING TO MATCH BARRY AND FLYNN

Jim Barry and Porky Flynn are being negotiated with for a meeting at the Armory Athletic Club November 1. The entire card at the Armory Club next Tuesday is as follows: Beano Breen vs. Dutch Carr, Young Reardon vs. Joe Egan, Eddie Carr vs. Young Jasper, all six rounds; while the final event will be twelve rounds to a decision between Jimmy Gardner, the Lowell middleweight, and Frank Klauss, the popular Pittsburg boxer.

ENGLISH LOSES STAR ATHLETE BY FAULTY EDICT

Harold Janvrin, captain of the English High football team, is ineligible for athletics at the school. Two days before the game with Dorchester High it was announced that Captain Janvrin was ineligible. The head masters' committee composed of Messrs. Clay, Mann and Eliot, at the meeting on the day before the game decided that, inasmuch as Janvrin was returning to school to finish his preparation and not merely for athletics, he would be eligible.

Janvrin was allowed to play against Dorchester, and his work alone prevented Dorchester from winning.

HARVARD SEES HARD BATTLE WITH BROWN

By E. V. B. Parke.

The [illegible] day [illegible] work, [illegible] the battle [illegible] Brown [illegible] not [illegible] given [illegible] its [illegible] second [illegible] struggle [illegible] of the All Stars [illegible] test was [illegible] ing [illegible]

Owing to the [illegible] Brown has put up every [illegible] for the past [illegible] Harvard [illegible] the Brown [illegible] working as hard [illegible] get [illegible] The coaches will [illegible] the varsity [illegible] cent [illegible]

The game will [illegible] derogatory term [illegible] strong points [illegible] gard to the play [illegible]

You have [illegible] the contest [illegible] yard varsity composed [illegible] they might not have [illegible] condition [illegible] forgotten [illegible] foot all known [illegible] player, the star games [illegible] been credited [illegible] undergraduate days.

Philbin Master at Game.

Philbin, [illegible] halfback on the Yale eleven last year, was there with [illegible] a [illegible] former masterful style, making some substantial gains through the Harvard line [illegible] until [illegible] was composed [illegible] of subs.

"Boy" Waite, the old Harvard [illegible] back, also made some spectacular [illegible] plunges, while Pfeffer, the former Princeton star, brought forth many cheers from the five thousand persons who gathered in the Stadium, by his remarkable ability to tear through the line, practically unaided. He looks frail, but when he started to g[illegible] [illegible] assumed the [illegible] Yale end, held down his position [illegible] who probably [illegible] fight all the time [illegible] step the Harvard attack [illegible] last year [illegible]

The "All Stars" [illegible] powerless to make headway [illegible] regulars [illegible] opponents [illegible] with a striking [illegible] On the other hand [illegible] was never threatened [illegible] of the Harvard team [illegible] them.

Linemen Break Up Plays

The Harvard [illegible] Wigglesworth and McKay [illegible] to spoil plays [illegible] and McKay recovering [illegible] Lewis [illegible] Wigglesworth [illegible] for a gain of fifty yards [illegible]

The [illegible] with Hoar and Parks as [illegible] first rate [illegible] Lewis and Smith [illegible] was perfect [illegible] spoiled end runs by the speedy Potter [illegible]

Lowell [illegible] Smith also got [illegible] the runner [illegible]

The work of the backfield of the Crimson [illegible] is worthy of [illegible] Corbett and Graustein were there with all kinds of speed and heady running. The former [illegible] of his former [illegible] fifty yards [illegible] Graustein [illegible] forward pass [illegible] yards to the All Stars [illegible] line.

Excellent Interference

If [illegible] long gains [illegible] of players [illegible] as the All Stars [illegible] there must be [illegible] Harvard [illegible] the best kind of interference [illegible] after man [illegible] bowled over [illegible] one of the brightest spots [illegible]

[illegible] of Lewis' gains [illegible] from the side lines [illegible] opposing players were able to come along side of him, but his defence kept them from getting near enough to block the kicks [illegible] getting off. Here again the Harvard team [illegible] far ahead of the teams in prior years.

As to the protection given the opposing punter [illegible] it was good, but had [illegible] quick in getting [illegible] his kicks, they would several times have been blocked, so quick were the Harvard forwards in breaking through.

The Harvard secondary defence was superb, but it cannot be said that it exceeded that of the All Stars. Theirs was composed of men who were noted for their work in this department, and they all lived up to the reputations which they had previously made for themselves.

Another feature of the game was the apparent fearlessness with which Gardner tried forward passes, and better still, success with which his attempts were [illegible] gaining considerable ground for the Crimson. It also showed, incidentally, that Crimson has mastered this play in a greater degree than most teams, and all of them can be depended on to handle the play as it should be handled.

NEW HAVEN

I "Came through" with another good thing for my customers down at New Haven yesterday. For 35 years S. Lear & Son fashioned the finest clothes under the very shadow of Yale for the best dressed men in the college. The firm's decision to retire from business was followed by "A MESSAGE TO MITCHELL, THE MAN WITH THE MONEY," and I bought their entire beautiful stock of woolens—goods that were imported for the best university trade. You know what that means.

This big purchase, coming as it does on top of my heavy buy of the Herbert R. Houghton & Co. woolens, sets back my removal for one month.

Letters to Business Girl

By DOROTHY DIX

Keep Busy and You'll Be Happy

MY DEAR SADIE: I have your note in which you [illegible] that you have secured a position [illegible] & Co.'s as a stenographer [illegible] to-morrow you begin your career as a business girl.

DOROTHY DIX

I congratulate you. [illegible]

[illegible] effort to their immediate vicinity.

Grasp Independence

[illegible] workers instead of one of the idlers [illegible] look upon you at the rich girls who live in luxurious homes [illegible] and skimp and save in order to [illegible]

[illegible]

In one of the new plays there is a line [illegible] that there are but three great moments in a woman's life. [illegible] The second [illegible]

[illegible] the working woman [illegible]

[illegible] She will never have to [illegible] She does not have to [illegible] or beg for money [illegible] She knows what the [illegible] privilege of being independent [illegible]

[illegible] things that are beautiful [illegible] world [illegible] there is [illegible] so good to look at as your own individual pocketbook. Just go and take a squint at that whenever you are tempted to envy Miss Gladys de Vere Goldbags, who has her bills charged to papa and would have to go and sponge on some unwilling relative if papa should suddenly die bankrupt, as fathers frequently have a way of doing. That hideous experience couldn't happen to you because you have a trade. Thank God for it.

Be proud of being a working [illegible]. Look upon the appellation as [illegible] It takes intelligence and character and [illegible] to hold down a good job.

The Hardest Way the Best

And it means something more. It means the chivalry of womanhood. When a pretty young girl elects to live in a hall bedroom and cook her meals over a gas stove and wear cheap clothing and stand for eight or ten hours a day behind a counter, or bending over a typewriter or ledger, it means that she has chosen the hardest way instead of the easiest way, and that she is [illegible] of life.

For my part, I never watch the army of working girls that [illegible] through our streets [illegible] mornings going to their hard toil, [illegible] feel like taking off my hat and [illegible] them, for I [illegible] valor and [illegible] and courage [illegible] No member of the Old Guard of France ever had [illegible] belonging to his battle [illegible] regiment than you to that heroic [illegible]

Don't pity yourself for being a working girl. Be thankful for the privilege. Did you ever stop to think what the right to work means to a woman, and that you [illegible] all the world who were not forced to [illegible] to be poor or else go into the poorhouse, or be a hanger-on, despised and ill-treated, in some family where they weren't wanted?

The poor girl of the past had to sell herself for a home. She was obliged to [illegible] whether she wanted to or not, whether she loved the man or not, whether he was repulsive to her or not. She couldn't even wait, in the hope that the right man might come along, or that she [illegible] the man she fancied. She was forced to take the first good chance that [illegible] because she dared not run the risk [illegible] an old maid [illegible] to follow the dictates of [illegible] She does not need to [illegible] She is not [illegible] by the fear of [illegible] self-supporting [illegible] life, for the working [illegible] interests [illegible] of the race for success.

I am not decrying [illegible] Far from it. Wifehood and motherhood are the finest career that any woman ever followed, and marriage is a woman's best job when she gets the right man. But between marrying for love and marrying for a living, is all the difference between happiness and misery, between virtue and vice, and I am just [illegible] your attention to the fact that being a self-supporting woman gives you the [illegible] advantage of being able to pick out your husband, instead of having to take any makeshift of a man that happens along.

These, then, are among the chief perquisites of being a working girl: independence, self-respect, freedom of body and soul.

Believe me, little sister, they are worth having, and so I again congratulate you on your entry into the great world of work.

Marry Young; Don't Wait

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Cannot Restore Youth

The man to marry is [illegible] within two years of your own age. A man who will still have enough spirit and go in him to enjoy fun and the rational pleasures of youth.

[illegible] a foolish boy falls in love with [illegible]

If the woman has sense she sends him promptly about his business, for she sees the absurdity of such a union.

The boy is infatuated, and will [illegible] for himself, he must be forced to [illegible]

He may marry her and make an excellent husband, but he will never be as ecstatically happy as he would have been in marrying a girl of his own age.

Women Age Quickly

Women age more quickly than men, and [illegible] both pathetic and ridiculous to watch a middle-aged wife trying to keep [illegible] on a frisky young husband. Men and women should marry young. They should enjoy their youth together. Responsibility is good for men, and the knowledge that he has a wife and children dependent on him ennobles and develops the man who otherwise might [illegible] to but little.

My advice to all young people is marry and marry young.

I don't mean that a man should marry unless he is willing to work for his wife and feels that he can support her. But [illegible] that you must start in where your parents left off.

He may have to give up a few pet luxuries, but a good wife is the greatest luxury of all.

Here are two pictures for my little girl friends to look at. Which wife would you rather be?

The Ghost Objected

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

IT was a gloomy night in Shadeland.

There was a cold rain, and the wind, with dismal moans, blew the tattered garments of the [illegible] around them as they [illegible] on the shattered sides of overturned tombstones, huddled in queer shapes, trying to keep warm. They were awaiting with some interest the return of a woman who died yesterday and who had been permitted to return to earth to revisit the scenes of her former abode.

They could feel her coming a long way off by the unusual agitation of the wind, and when she arrived she tried to talk but sputtered so in her indignation that her words were blown away.

"What do you think?" she managed to gasp, "they had ALL BLACK crepe on my door! As if I were an old woman! They might have put some white with it!"

Here she caused such a stir in the atmosphere that she blew herself away, and as she disappeared over the brow of the hill the wind brought back a few disconnected words about a widow whom she held responsible and who lived next door.

EIGHTEENTH INSTALMENT

"NO excitement, [illegible] I understand. Very good."

Even the inspector, accustomed for long years to the unexpected, was conscious of a thrill of horrified surprise as he looked at the woman he had at last [illegible] under such different circumstances, [illegible] perhaps, but [illegible] as she demanded vengeance.

Mastering with a difficulty and distress [illegible] to witness, the woman on the bed managed to make herself clear.

"I have discovered the [illegible] of my son * * * his own [illegible] * * * Mr. Jardine."

And as the inspector, with an incredulous gesture, but curiously intent and alert eyes, leaned forward, her own eyes, so bright, so steadfastly malignant, bade him be silent.

"I have proof [illegible]" Very slowly, using words [illegible] as a [illegible] might [illegible] a novice in the language, Mrs. Stuyvesant told the intent listening man the story of the letter discovered torn in Mrs. Knowles' fireplace and pieced together, the letter addressed to the police that told of the existence in Jardine's flat of the companion dumb-bell to that discovered on the body of the murdered man.

Very plain to the woman who had brooded so long over the details, who saw in them what she desired to see, not so plain to the detective. It was difficult to tell her so, but he did so with all the tact at his command.

"Arrest Jardine!"

"After all, mere hearsay, madam," he concluded.

If Mrs. Stuyvesant's eyes had been knives they would have wounded Inspector Goodrich sorely. She curbed her impatience hardly.

"Enough hearsay to enable you to search the flat."

"Assuredly, madam. The flat will be [illegible] without delay."

"And if found enough to arrest—the man?"

"On suspicion, yes, madam. I may admit without any breach of confidence that Mr. Jardine is already under surveillance."

"Ah * * *" Just the one guttural word, yet eloquent of the most intense satisfaction.

He stood up. Under the most favorable of circumstances nothing was to be gained by prolonging this interview—under the present circumstances it was highly discreet that it should close.

He uttered a few platitudes regarding his sympathy, his interest in the case—the unremitting care of those in charge of it. The woman did not heed him.

"Enough evidence to hang him—to to arrest the man—enough evidence in her letter [illegible]"

The sentence came in abrupt, detached words that were followed by other sounds . . . dreadful sounds . . . not all at once did it occur to the horrified man that it was attempted laughter.

"Enough evidence to hang him—to hang Lewis's murderer. . . ."

Inspector Goodrich never knew whether the sentence had been completed, whether instinctively he had completed it himself. A struggling, gasping sound had followed it . . . the face of the woman on the bed seemed to twist and crumple up. With a loud [illegible] to the bell and pulled it vigorously.

* * *

MRS. McILWRAITH came quickly down the staircase of the house in Watergate street, and, without a glance to the right or left, turned up the side street that led further into the heart of [illegible] egress into the Strand was [illegible] by way of [illegible]. The Strand was her objective. [illegible]

[illegible]

For Mrs. McIlwraith was too wary a bird to be caught by the [illegible] thrown to her by the [illegible] Watergate street.

[illegible]

Somehow the [illegible] of the police had not surprised [illegible] as much as it [illegible] her consternation [illegible] but not surprise. [illegible] things that had happened, the worst was not yet.

But now the worst had happened! A dreadful worst that threatened [illegible] she held most dear in life. Even now she held [illegible] proof of the danger that [illegible] master [illegible] and in the danger that threatened she knew of only one ally—only Mr. Fleury was her master's friend.

She knew Fleury's house; she had been there once or twice previously, both before and after Fleury had left Watergate street to take up his more or less permanent residence there, a quaint [illegible] gable-fronted house in a forgotten byway of Clerkenwell. It had come to Fleury as a legacy, and its many interesting quaintnesses and treasures had reconciled him to its geographical inconvenience.

She knocked and rang, obeying the instructions of a small plate beneath the knocker, and after an appreciable delay the door was opened by an untidy-looking boy in a striped linen jacket who made no reply to her inquiry if Mr. Fleury was at home, but, standing aside in a weary and blase manner, commanded her to step inside.

She sat near the window and loosened her bonnet strings, for she was hot and tired, and as she waited she rehearsed what she would say.

"Mr. Jardine's in danger—the police are after him, we should be after warning him, sir," had an unpleasantly crude and unfinished look as she surveyed it mentally.

For a while it was pleasant sitting there in the breeze that blew off the canal, but as the minutes slipped by and no one came to relieve the tedium of her waiting she became gradually uneasy.

She stood up, tied her bonnet strings with an air of resolution, and was just moving to the door when it opened. From [illegible] hall waited [illegible] the familiar, "If you'll wait here [illegible] if Mr. Fleury can see you," and another visitor was ushered into [illegible]

A visitor at whom [illegible] befitted a virtuous [illegible] matron, Mrs. McIlwraith stared [illegible] for a few seconds, forgetting [illegible] uneasiness in [illegible] accession of sex [illegible]

To the mere male eye she would have [illegible] as a [illegible] strikingly good-looking girl, very becomingly dressed in black, with a [illegible] of wonderful [illegible] gold hair crowned by an amazing [illegible] with many [illegible] plumes. To Mrs. McIlwraith she [illegible] all this and [illegible] more [illegible] that is summed up in the one [illegible] sentence, "a brazen hussy."

Mrs. McIlwraith would have [illegible] a girl interested her as well as [illegible] there was something familiar about her; she [illegible] memories [illegible] place. [illegible] was more [illegible] relief that the [illegible] waiting had [illegible] which she rose to greet Fleury, who at that moment entered the room.

"Mrs. Mac—" He [illegible] her hand. "I hear you've been waiting an unconscionable time. I'm most awfully sorry [illegible] come upstairs."

At the sound of his voice the girl at the window drew in her head.

"Well, we—" she said. "I've been hanging round this blessed house the whole day."

"I'm sorry." There was a touch of [illegible] in Fleury's pleasant voice. "I'll see you presently [illegible] less, if you care to wait. You [illegible] explain, you had no appointment, you know."

"A model of mine, Mrs. Mac," Fleury said pleasantly as he led the way up the wide, shallow-stepped staircase, polished and uncarpeted. "A handsome young woman, as you see, but with the dickens of a temper."

OVER 8500 NATIONAL COMPANY'S

RAINCOATS

At Less Than Cost of Raw Material!

A few days ago the National Raincoat House were forced to close the doors—having about 12,500 garments left, and also the factory lots delayed by the Great Garment Makers' Strike in New York, embracing the finest garments ever offered to the public.

We made them a ridiculous cash offer. It was accepted—an offer so low that it will enable us to sell standard garments for the next few days at less than one-half the cost to manufacture.

We have moved the entire stock to our big store—127 Tremont Street—and the Sale is on TODAY.

The Atlantic Crossed By Balloon

Edgar Allan Poe's Famous "Balloon" Hoax

THIRD INSTALMENT

We were all now anxious to test the efficiency of the rudder and screw, and we put them both into requisition forthwith, for the purpose of altering our direction, and our course was brought nearly at right angles to that of the wind; when we set in motion the spring of the screw, and were rejoiced to find it propel us readily as desired. Upon this we gave nine hearty cheers and dropped in the sea a bottle, inclosing a slip of parchment with a brief account of the principle of the invention. Hardly, however, had we done with our rejoicings, when an unforeseen accident occurred which discouraged us in no little degree. The steel rod connecting the spring with the propeller was suddenly jerked out of place at the car end (by a swaying of the car through some movement of one of the two seamen we had taken up), and in an instant hung dangling out of reach, from the pivot of the axis of the screw. While we were endeavoring to regain it, our attention being completely absorbed, we became involved in a strong current of wind from the east, which bore us, with rapidly increasing force, toward the Atlantic. We soon found ourselves driving out to sea at the rate of not less, certainly, than fifty or sixty miles an hour, so that we came up with Cape Clear, at some forty miles to our north, before we had secured the rod, and had time to think what we were about. It was now that Mr. Ainsworth made an extraordinary but, to my fancy, a by no means unreasonable or chimerical proposition, in which he was instantly seconded by Mr. Holland—viz.: that we should take advantage of the strong gale which bore us on, and in place of beating back to Paris, make an attempt to reach the coast of North America. After slight reflection I gave a willing assent to this bold proposition, which (strange to say) met with objection from the two seamen only. As the stronger party, however, we overruled their fears and kept resolutely upon our course. We steered due west, but as the trailing buoys materially impeded our progress, and we had the balloon abundantly at command, either for ascent or descent, we first threw out fifty pounds of ballast and then wound up (by means of a windlass) so much of the rope as brought it quite clear of the sea. We perceived the effect of this manoeuvre immediately, in a vastly increased rate of progress; and as the gale freshened we flew with a velocity nearly inconceivable; the guiderope flying out behind the car like a streamer from a vessel. It is needless to say that a very short time sufficed us to lose sight of the coast. We passed over innumerable vessels of all kinds, a few of which were endeavoring to beat us, but the most of them lying to. We occasioned the greatest excitement on board all—an excitement greatly relished by ourselves, and especially by our two men, who, now under the influence of a dram of Geneva, seemed resolved to give all scruples, or fear, to the wind. Many of the vessels fired signal guns; and in all we were saluted with loud cheers (which we heard with surprising distinctness) and the waving of caps and handkerchiefs. We kept on in this manner throughout the day with no material incident, and, as the shades of night closed around us, we made a rough estimate of the distance traversed. It could not have been less than five hundred miles, and was probably much more. The propeller was kept in constant operation, and, no doubt, aided our progress materially. As the sun went down the gale freshened into an absolute hurricane, and the ocean beneath was clearly visible on account of its phosphorescence. The wind was from the east all night, and gave us the brightest omen of success. We suffered no little from cold, and the dampness of the atmosphere was most unpleasant; but the ample space of the car enabled us to lie down, and by means of cloaks and a few blankets we did sufficiently well.

Most Exciting Time.

"P. S. (by Mr. Ainsworth)—The last nine hours have been unquestionably the most exciting of my life. I can conceive nothing more sublimating than the strange peril and novelty of an adventure such as this. May God grant that we succeed! I ask not for success for mere safety to my insignificant person, but for the sake of human knowledge and—for the vastness of the triumph. And yet the sole wonder is why men have scrupled to attempt it before. One single gale such as now befriends us—let such a tempest whirl forward a balloon for four or five days (these gales often last longer) and the voyager will be easily borne, in that period, from coast to coast. In view of such a gale the broad Atlantic becomes a mere lake. I am more struck just now, with the supreme silence which reigns in the sea beneath us, notwithstanding its agitation, than with any other phenomenon presenting itself. The waters give up no voice to the heavens. The immense flaming ocean writhes and is tortured uncomplainingly. The mountainous surges suggest the idea of innumerable dumb gigantic fiends struggling in impotent agony. In a night such as is this to me, a man lives—lives a whole century of ordinary life—nor would I forego this rapturous delight for that of a whole century of ordinary existence.

"Sunday, the 7th (Mr. Mason's MS.)—This morning the gale, by ten, had subsided to an eight or nine-knot breeze (for a vessel at sea), and bears us, perhaps, thirty miles per hour or more. It has veered, however, very considerably to the north, and now, at sundown, we are holding our course due west, principally by the screw and rudder, which answer their purposes to admiration. I regard the project as thoroughly successful, and the easy navigation of the air in any direction (not exactly in the teeth of a gale) as no longer problematical. We could not have made head against the strong wind of yesterday; but, by ascending, we might have got out of its influence, if requisite. Against a pretty stiff breeze, I feel convinced, we can make our way with the propeller. At noon to-day, ascended to an elevation of nearly 25,000 feet, by discharging ballast. Did this to search for a more direct current, but found none so favorable as the one we are now in. We have an abundance of gas to take us across this small pond, even should the voyage last three weeks. I have not the slightest fear for the result. The difficulty has been strangely exaggerated and misapprehended. I can choose my current, and should I find all currents against me, I can make very tolerable headway with the propeller. We have had no accidents worth recording. The night promises fair.

Experiences High in Air.

"P. S. (By Mr. Ainsworth)—I have little to record except the fact (to me quite a surprising one) that, at an elevation equal to that of Cotopaxi, I experienced neither very intense cold, nor headache, nor difficulty of breathing; neither, I find, did Mr. Mason, nor Mr. Holland, nor Sir Everard. Mr. Osborne complained of constriction of the chest—but this soon wore off. We have flown at a great rate during the day, and we must be more than half way across the Atlantic. We have passed over some twenty or thirty vessels of various kinds, and all seem to be delightfully astonished. Crossing the ocean in a balloon is not so difficult a feat after all. Omne ignotum pro magnifico. Mem.: at 25,000 feet elevation the sky appears nearly black, and the stars are distinctly visible; while the sea does not seem convex (as one might suppose), but absolutely and most unequivocally concave."*

*[Note.—Mr. Ainsworth has not attempted to account for this phenomenon, which, however, is quite susceptible of explanation. A line dropped from an elevation of 25,000 feet, perpendicularly to the surface of the earth (or sea), would form the perpendicular of a right-angled triangle, of which the base would extend from the right angle to the horizon, and the hypothenuse from the horizon to the balloon. But the 25,000 feet of altitude is little or nothing, in comparison with the extent of the prospect. In other words, the base and hypothenuse of the supposed triangle would be so long, when compared with the perpendicular, that the two former may be regarded as nearly parallel. In this manner the horizon of the aeronaut would appear to be on a level with the car. But, as the point immediately beneath him seems, and is, at a great distance below him, it seems, of course, also, at a great distance below the horizon. Hence the impression of concavity; and this impression must remain, until the elevation shall bear so great a proportion to the extent of prospect, that the apparent parallelism of the base and hypothenuse disappears—when the earth's real convexity must become apparent.]

"Monday, the 8th. (Mr. Mason's MS.)—This morning we had again some little trouble with the rod of the propeller, which must be entirely remodelled, for fear of serious accident—I mean the steel rod, not the vanes. The latter could not be improved. The wind has been blowing steadily and strongly from the northeast all day, and so far fortune seems bent upon favoring us. Just before day we were all somewhat alarmed at some odd noises and concussions in the balloon, accompanied with the apparent rapid subsidence of the whole machine. These phenomena were occasioned by the expansion of the gas, through increase of heat in the atmosphere, and the consequent disruption of the minute particles of ice with which the network had become encrusted during the night. Threw down several bottles to the vessels below. See one of them picked up by a large ship—seemingly one of the New York line packets. Endeavored to make out her name, but could not be sure of it. Mr. Osborne's telescope made it out something like 'Atlanta.' It is now twelve at night, and we are still going nearly west, at a rapid pace. The sea is peculiarly phosphorescent.

"P. S. (By Mr. Ainsworth)—It is now two a. m. and nearly calm as well as I can judge—but it is very difficult to determine this point, since we move with the air so completely. I have not slept since quitting Wheal-Vor, but can stand it no longer, and must take a nap. We cannot be far from the American coast.

"Tuesday, the 9th (Mr. Ainsworth's MS.)—One p. m. We are in full view of the low coast of South Carolina. The great problem is accomplished. We have crossed the Atlantic—fairly and easily crossed it in a balloon! God be praised! Who shall say that any thing is impossible hereafter?"

Triumphant Landing.

The Journal here ceases. Some particulars of the descent were communicated, however, by Mr. Ainsworth to Mr. Forsyth. It was nearly dead calm when the voyagers first came in view of the coast, which was immediately recognized by both the seamen and Mr. Osborne. The latter gentleman having acquaintances at Fort Moultrie, it was immediately resolved to descend in its vicinity. The balloon was brought over the beach (the tide being out and the sand hard, smooth and admirably adapted for a descent), and the grapnel let go, which took firm hold at once. The inhabitants of the island and of the fort thronged out, of course, to see the balloon; but it was with the greatest difficulty that any one could be made to credit the actual voyage—the crossing of the Atlantic. The grapnel caught at 2 p. m. precisely, and thus the whole voyage was completed in seventy-five hours, or rather less, counting from shore to shore. No serious accident occurred. No real danger was at any time apprehended. The balloon was exhausted and secured without trouble, and when the MS. from which this narrative is compiled was dispatched from Charleston, the party were still at Fort Moultrie. Their further intentions were not ascertained; but we can safely promise our readers some additional information either on Monday or in the course of the next day, at furthest.

This is unquestionably the most stupendous, the most interesting and the most important undertaking ever accomplished or even attempted by man. What magnificent events may ensue, it would be useless now to think of determining.

THE END.

GRAYING HAIR

DESPITE the enthusiasts who rave over young faces and white hair, no woman really welcomes gray hair; she may become reconciled to it to the point of not favoring dyes, but that is all.

Therefore take every precaution to keep the hair from turning. Poor general health will do it; so will excessive worry or too much brain work without proper exercise and relaxation.

Nothing will cause the hair to become gray so quickly as allowing the scalp to be robbed of nourishing oils. For this reason too much shampooing or the use of drying mixtures on the hair is bad.

Tonics that contain plenty of oil are invaluable to keep the natural lustre of the hair, and should be used regularly by those whose family has a tendency to turn gray early.

TWO LEADERS OF EXCLUSIVE BOSTON SOCIETY CIRCLES

MRS. NATHANIEL THAYER

MRS. BAYARD THAYER

Two of Boston's most interesting matrons, Miss Nathaniel Thayer and Mrs. Bayard Thayer will shortly take their places in the front ranks of Boston's fashionable hostesses. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer has already returned to town after a delightful session at Newport, and Mrs. Bayard Thayer who still lingers at her Lancaster estate, will return the last of the month.

School Girl Don'ts

DON'T think it smart to lord it over new scholars. Hazing is bad enough for boys; girls should be above it.

Don't spend your first weeks in school groaning that vacation is over. Buckle down to work and life will be easier for you.

Don't think yourself so clever that you need not study. It is rarely the most brilliant pupil in a school who carries off the honors. Plodders may be despised, but they win.

Don't, on the other hand, let your ambition run away with you. A healthy body counts more to a growing girl than abnormal brain development. There is time for the latter in years ahead, but now is a crucial health period that dare not risk overstudy.

Don't be unruly, disagreeable, sneaky or "bossy" as a school girl. Besides making yourself unpopular with teachers and schoolmates you are making impressions that never will be forgotten no matter how much you change in after years.

"Don't try to make the teacher an object of humor. Just why the school girl should feel it well fitted to bait the woman who teaches her no one knows.

Don't be a sloven if in later life you would hate to have old friends say, "I'll wager her house is a sight, she kept such a dirty desk in school," or "she's the girl who never had clean hands in school."

Don't be greedy. The girl who is always taking bites behind her desk, munching candy whenever the teacher's back is turned and eats steadily all recess is not only nicknamed "the greedy one," but ruins her digestion and her nerves.

Don't be double faced or a cheat at your lessons. The impressions of school life are not lasting, but the actions which give rise to them have a lasting effect on one's own character. The school crook rarely makes the honest woman.

HAPPINESS.

HAPPINESS comes to us all, or to nearly all of us in fragments. Nobody can arrange for a whole month's happiness in advance. We may have happier moments in the eleven months than in the one. They may come at a jolly dinner party, in the exchange of confidences with a friend, in a good "right and left" when shooting, in a clean smite to square leg, in a couplet of verse or a single page of a book or the sight of a well fitting sail close hauled. But promised joys are the most elusive. He who would sit down to enjoy the sunset, to hear the wind sing in the grass or surge beautifully through trees, to listen to the song of birds or the cries of sea fowl in a marsh or the note of church bells rising from a valley—he who would do these things to reach happiness will find (certainly if he be alone) that his mood turns to melancholy.—From the London Spectator.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STOCKS ACTIVE, BUT IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Contrary to expectation, the increase from 4 to 5 per cent in the Bank of England rate had little effect on stocks at the opening of the market to-day. It was generally expected that the increase would have a marked effect.

Stocks were active with price quotations irregular. Union Pacific moved up half and Reading lost half. Similar gains and losses were recorded throughout the entire list. After the first twenty minutes of trading, the market settled down, opening prices within a fraction of yesterday's close. The coppers were strong. Amalgamated spurting a gain of ⅜ and Anaconda a gain of one point. This was due to an advance of [illegible] of thirty-day electrolytic copper. Steel was a little slow. Yesterday's opening of American Smelting was unchanged.

There was little activity on the curb and prices were unchanged.

Americans were firm in London.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The Bank of England has advanced its minimum rate of discount from 4 to 5 per cent.

$ $ $

A very gentlemanly reaction in the market afforded buying opportunities for those who have been hanging back waiting for a chance to get in, and advantage was taken of it, also, to add to long commitments. The feeling continued to be bullish.

$ $ $

There seemed to be nothing the matter further than that many of those who had good profits thought it best to take them, and the bears added their mite in the way of short selling in the hope of making a point or two.

$ $ $

Reports from the industrial fields show there is a moderate growth in business—all that might be expected just at this time—and the West sent in more orders to buy securities. Conditions out that way show improvement because of the fine harvest returns.

$ $ $

Buying of odd lots of stock remains a feature of the trading, and brokers who make a specialty of this sort of business say they have all they can do. Investors in a small way are exceedingly hopeful, and numerous savings banks accounts have been transferred to brokers' offices.

$ $ $

A sign of weakness in the bear party is the selling of stocks of an advance of the Bank of England rate. This advance had been expected for weeks and the only wonder is that it has been delayed so long. It is perfectly natural and has to be done to finance the American cotton now going abroad. There has been no great speculation, and the advance of the bank rate is not a blow at American securities, as some authorities believed it was a year ago. Agreement of the English bankers to accept American cotton bills without a guarantee for the rest of the year relieves the international money situation of any menace it may have had so far as regards the American markets.

$ $ $

The true reason for the present advance in stocks is being ignored by some authorities because it was published prematurely in this column. The reason is that the United States Government will begin no prosecutions against any corporation without first giving it an opportunity to bring itself within the law. Establishment of this principle as a permanent policy on the part of the government relieves the political situation of all its terrors. There is nothing to fear now from either party since President Taft has decided definitely on this program.

$ $ $

The steel business is looking better, according to most authorities. Action of the Steel Trust in opening warehouses, so that small consumers as well as jobbers can get orders filled on short notice, has excited the jobbers because it is cutting off much of their trade. Copper is also better, chiefly as a result of the increased consumption [illegible] of output that has been agreed upon by all the leading producers.

$ $ $

New York Central is a strong feature. While the rumored plans to extend the system are not officially confirmed, it can at least be said that not one of them is in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, as understood in the Street. Of course, if the Government wins in its contention that the Union Pacific competed with the Southern Pacific at San Francisco prior to acquisition of the Southern Pacific by the Union, then the New York Central will be unable to own the Western Maryland, because New York Central now sends freight to Baltimore by way of New York City, and to send that freight by way of the Western Maryland would be a case exactly parallel with that on which the Government has dragged the Harriman lines to court.

SINGER, DIVORCED, NOW SEEKS CHILD

WORCESTER, Oct. 20.—A hearing is on before the probate court on the petition of Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts Munroe of New York for the custody of her son, Edward R. Rice of Worcester. The petitioner is known in Worcester as Bessie Roberts Rice, having been a stenographer before her marriage a dozen years ago. She was prominent in local music circles and took part in several operas. After divorce proceedings she married Harry C. Munroe, and has since lived in Providence and in New York city. Mrs. Munroe has made several attempts to see her son in this city and claims she has repeatedly been denied the right by the father of the boy.

DEATH DUE TO BLOW OF BRASS KNUCKLES

Louis K. Simmons of Plainfield met his death from tetanus, caused by a blow with steel knuckles, delivered by Fred Loveley, also of Plainfield, according to the finding made by Eldridge A. Whitaker, Judge of the District Court of western Norfolk, today. The finding was filed with the clerk of the Superior Court of Dedham. Simons died in the Massachusetts General Hospital, September 26. On the morning of September 14, he was found in a dazed condition in Plainfield with several bruises on his head. Near him lay some steel knuckles. These were later identified as belonging to Loveley.

TEXAS DEMOCRATS JOIN TO DOWN BAILEY

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 20.—With the institution of an organization of 25,000 Democrats of Texas, plans have been perfected for the defeat of Junior Senator Joseph W. Bailey. This organization is under the direction of General M. M. Crane of Dallas, Judge Yancey Lewis and A. H. Dashiell of Terrell, Judge W. P. McLean of Fort Worth, Colonel J. Parramore of Abilene, Rufus Hardie of Corsicana, and other men prominent in Texas politics. A candidate opposed to Bailey will be placed in every Congressional district and in each State Senatorial and Legislative district. The only issue will be Baileyism and prohibition will not be considered.

LEOMINSTER FOREST FIRE STILL RAGES

LEOMINSTER, Oct. 20.—More than 2,000 acres, much of it valuable first-growth timber, have been burned over in a forest fire which is raging in Leominster, Fitchburg, Princeton and Westminster. Two hundred men from the four places fought the fire through the night, hoping every minute for rain. Fire Chief Frederick A. Russell of this town, who has been on duty constantly for three days, was compelled to rest last night. He started out on the fire line again to-day.

The fire line is over two miles long. Yesterday it encroached upon the big E. A. Palmer homestead lot just over the Fitchburg line. The dwelling and farm buildings were saved by the Fitchburg chemical company.

The fire started Monday on the Palmer farm. It was caused, it is thought by careless hunters. It burned over 250 acres of timber that day, getting beyond control of the fighters. The next day Chief Russell had twenty-five men of his department and as many more from the highway department battling with the creeping flames.

Chief T. F. Murnane of Fitchburg department had fifty men out. Twenty-five more men came from Westminster and Princeton. Tuesday the fire swept over 500 acres more, making a total of 750 acres charred by the flames.

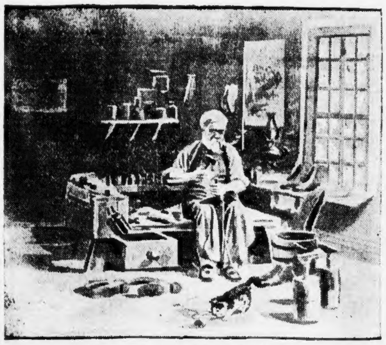
Men were on the fire line all Tuesday night. Food was served to them by a local caterer. Yesterday the flames destroyed 500 cords of cut wood on the Leominster side of the line, then burned 7,000 feet of cut lumber on the Palmer farm, which lies in both Leominster and Fitchburg. It was at this time that the Palmer homestead was threatened. By last night the flames had swept over 2,000 acres of first and second growth.

FRIDAY "BRITISH DAY."

Friday is "British and Canadian Day" at the Mechanics Exposition, and there will be special exercises of great interest to all Englishmen and Canadians. Canada's 75th regiment band from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, will give two special concerts, and the programme will comprise the most popular and most patriotic English, Scotch and Canadian airs.

SIXTY Wonderful Machines replace the old-time handshoe-maker--sixty highly specialized machines, each operating to a single end in the making of "Goodyear Welt" Shoes are exhibited by The United Shoe Machinery Company at the Mechanics· Fair, Huntington Avenue, Boston. See them. The sight is worth a special visit.

You don't have to possess a mechanical turn of mind to appreciate them—to marvel at them. The work they do surpasses the finest standards established by handcraft. Their superhuman efficiency is so amazing that thousands have watched them perform—spellbound.



The Days of the Lapstone and the Awl.

The "Goodyear Welt" Shoe

And there is a lesson to learn right here a lesson in shoe values—in shoe comfort.

You'll get information that will guide you in buying shoes for yourself and your family.

You'll find that the Goodyear Welt process has reduced prices on all high-grade shoes.

A generation ago only the man of means could afford fine, comfortable shoes.

Now everybody enjoys them at one-third the price the shoe maker used to charge.

Know that the "Goodyear Welt" is the basis of every high-grade shoe.

It is not the name of a shoe, but the name of a method of manufacture protected by patents.

Only the sixty machines you'll see at the Mechanics Fair can do this work. Only this one process can create shoes absolutely smooth on the inside.

Leading shoe manufacturers have their shoe factories equipped with these machines. Leading retailers sell them.

Come to the Mechanics Fair. You'll see a complete shoe factory in operation. —Note how these machines sew outer sole, welt and upper together with the seam entirely outside the shoe. And this is just one marvelons feature. There are many others just as wonderful. Come and see for yourself.

A FEW PEOPLE DON'T USE AMERICAN WANT ADS

For the same reason that modern methods were once scoffed at by our forefathers, yet, in spite of prejudice, progress has its way. The successful majority employ the "WANT AD WAY" to secure tenants, or buyers, or help, or employment. They employ the AMERICAN, realizing that it is the only paper which will carry their message to nearly all of the people.

Who Gave Out the Facts About Harriman's Private Speculations?

Mr. Schiff Should Be Interested in Answering the Question

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Somebody has supplied for newspaper purposes private information from the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., as to the speculations and profits of the late Edward H. Harriman.

The published extracts from the private books of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Mr. Jacob Schiff's firm, show that Mr. Harriman speculated in Panama canal bonds, and on one speculation netted a profit of some eighty-six thousand dollars.

This fact, in connection with a private transaction in the office of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., is offered as proof that Theodore Roosevelt told Harriman that the government was going to buy the Panama canal, that Harriman in consequence speculated in Panama canal securities, and that he made eighty-six thousand dollars in one single speculation—and gave fifty thousand dollars of this to Roosevelt's campaign fund.

Mr. Roosevelt probably will answer his own part of this particular accusation and publication.

The interesting point is this—WHO GAVE OUT THE PRIVATE FACTS CONCERNING TRANSACTIONS THAT COULD HAVE ONLY BEEN KNOWN TO E. H. HARRIMAN, HIS EXECUTORS AND MR. SCHIFF'S FIRM OF KUHN, LOEB & CO.?

The firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., we are told, assert that these facts concerning Harriman's gambling must have been given out by the Harriman estate—that is to say, with the consent of the widow of E. H. Harriman.

We consider it improbable that Mrs. Harriman would furnish for publication, to be used as arguments in a political quarrel, facts concerning the business affairs of her late husband.

Considering the accusations which have been made publicly against Mr. Roosevelt in connection with the Panama matter, and against members of Mr. Roosevelt's family, by the New York World, and combining with these accusations the fact that Harriman contributed to the Roosevelt campaign fund, and that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. documents prove that Harriman speculated successfully in Panama securities—you have the basis of a political accusation to the effect that Roosevelt and Harriman exchanged advance information concerning Panama for a campaign contribution.

Who gave out the facts which come from the office of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.? Mr. Schiff ought to answer this if he can.

It is known, of course, that the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is not friendly to Mr. Roosevelt—no firm in Wall street is friendly to him, so far as we know.

But, of course, it cannot be imagined that that firm should, in its desire to defeat an individual or a party, allow the publication of the private affairs of a client—especially of a dead man.

Such a thing would seem impossible in view of the general Wall street policy.

And absolutely incredible appears to be the statement that the facts have been given out by the family of the dead man.

A REAL explanation would be gratifying.

Cheers for Wellman, Nevertheless

It was foolhardy to try to cross the Atlantic in a balloon at the present stage of the flying business.

But men love hardihood, even with a dash of folly in it. And the thrilling exploit of Walter Wellman and his crew will get the homage that it deserves.

In a period of morbid caution, when every kind of honorable enterprise languishes for lack of pioneers and sea rovers, a man willing to face fearful odds for the mere hope of getting a big thing done should have a kind of moral coronation.

Better luck next time—and better sense.

Meanwhile the reckless pluck of Wellman is the world's toast.

Everybody is glad, too, that the cat was saved, and pleased that Shipmaster Down had the good grace to mention the fact by wireless, relieving anxiety on that score.

Against the raging scorn of the senseless wind and sea were flung the lives of seven breathing creatures.

They were baffled, but they are all breathing still.

The costly "dirigible" that would not steer was cast as rubbish to the wind, but the cat comes back.

It was comradely and thoroughly sportsmanlike.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

BALLOTS WILL TELL

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

As the tariff question and the increased cost of living are being considered to find out their relation, let us see what the people in other States have to say in regard to their connection.

"It is the pennies of the millions that make up the millions of the few. And the tariff collects its tribute in pennies, dimes and dollars in the increased cost of everything we consume."—Starbuck (Minn.) Times.

This we all know to be too true, and in our own State we see the Republican party claiming to have adopted a progressive platform and at the same time endorsing "stand patters" and reactionary candidates. Putting their O. K. on the principle of direct nominations, but in no district did they circulate petitions to aid the people in securing the reform which they claim so much to desire.

Can they continue to thus deceive the honest voters of the old Bay State? Ballots will tell.

PROGRESSIVE DEMOCRAT.

SMOKING IN CARS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

What a farce this notice in cars is, of "smoking when cars are open," when all the windows where the smoke begrimmed dreamers sit are always closed, sending most of the smoke drifting forward among the passengers. But now the cars are closed these cool mornings, and now seems to be the time for disappearing of this privileged class, but it is still in evidence, puffing its malodorous pipe as audacious as ever and as contemptuous of all rules and regulations made and provided for those who abhor the smell of the weed and are entitled to some consideration after enduring the stench all Summer. One would suppose that a man on the way home to supper would desire a sweet mouth for his food, and not saturated and tainted with germs and nastiness. A tilt with one of these unregenerate worthies (dysgusgents) last evening accentuated to my mind this disposition on their part to defy all requirements and decency, until brought to book by the conductor, and only shows how determined some of these offenders are. They have all outdoors to smoke in. Let us have peace and sweet savory odors within doors a part of the year.

VALUE OF ALGEBRA

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In reply to Mr. John Tuomey, in his criticism on the subject of algebra, which appeared in the BOSTON AMERICAN September 22, I would say that in my opinion algebra is not foolish, neither is it a nuisance.

A thorough understanding of algebra is very essential in some of the trades and professions. Among these I would mention machinist, mechanical engineer and draftsman.

I have attended high school, and while there was a loud proclaimer against the usefulness of algebra. I used to say, "What use will I ever have for algebra?" I have been out of school long enough to be able to look back with a broader perspective.

The point is, if a boy never practically uses algebra after he gets through school, the benefit to his reasoning powers this study has given him will be lasting.

May Alden Ward's Tribute to Julia Ward Howe

Mrs. May Alden Ward, lecturer and author, who succeeds Mrs. Julia Ward Howe as president of the New England Woman's Club—the first woman's club in America, founded by Mrs. Howe, from which grew the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs and later the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has written for the BOSTON AMERICAN the following tribute to the dead poetess. Mrs. Ward has been Mrs. Howe's right hand woman in all the meetings of the clubs and in many of the public movements in which Mrs. Howe was interested.

By MRS. MAY ALDEN WARD.

To-day we bid farewell to that imperial mold which held for us the personality of our dearest friend; the councilor, the prophetess, the loving mother of us all, who loved us with a devotion that never failed, and a loyalty that never can be forgotten.

In return no woman of our own day has received in fuller measure the love and loyalty of her own sex than Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. For years she has reigned as a queen in the hearts of American women. Why was it that, when she entered a room, other women rose instantly in recognition of her presence? It mattered not whether it was a little group in a parlor, or an audience of three thousand in Symphony Hall. No signal was given, no word was spoken, it was simply an instinctive, spontaneous tribute. It was not merely because of her genius, however great that may have been, that she received this homage. It was not because she stirred the heart of the nation with her "Battle Hymn." It was not because she had lived ninety-one years in the world. These years have been very full, and of great value to humanity, yet it was not alone for what she has done that Mrs. Howe was so beloved.

It was her personality. That indefinable something that made her what she was. It was because of that inexhaustible reservoir of courage which led her to espouse many an unpopular cause. It was because of the enthusiasm and faith which led her to further every movement for the advancement of women. It was because of the broad sympathies which caused her to give herself so generously in many directions; the sincerity, the nobility, which were seen in every line of her countenance and felt in every word she uttered, and lastly, as Colonel Higginson has said, it was because of the inexhaustible originality, freshness, and versatility with which she turned her faculties upon each of the successive problems and causes that claimed her attention.

Three Generations of Her Life.

Those who knew her in any one of the branches of her benevolent activity could not, on that account, be aware of the many other directions in which she was constantly giving her best endeavors to the problems of her day. In order to realize the breadth of her achievements it is necessary to review in a word what some have called the three generations of her life, or the three phases of human activity through which she lived.

Her youth, up to the fifties, was the cultured period of her life in which her fortunate surroundings gave her an acquaintance with the best which the thought of our country had to offer. These were the days of her excursions into all the languages and the literatures of the modern world, which she had many opportunities of exploring, owing to the breadth of her acquaintance and the multitude of men and women of the first rank whom she met at this period of her life.

Her second period, from the fifties to the eighties, represents the intense activity and the tremendous calls upon the heart which came with the Civil War and its following years. During these two periods, many books, poems, lectures, and addresses were given to the world, and all of them, as a rule, surcharged with hope and courage which her never failing optimism had always supplied. It was during the second of these periods that her deep philosophical insight began to be apparent to many who were her fellow laborers in the various causes which she loved. There was no cause which she did not befriend and no struggling group of men or women seeking some forlorn hope who could not count upon her co-operation. In this way she became attached to many groups of foreign people living in the United States, who had come to these shores as refugees, and had sought the protection of her sympathy and help.

With her third period, from the eighties to the present day, she began to occupy a unique position in our American life. Her great influence in the cause of human liberty, not only in America, but among all the oppressed, have given her name such a significance, and her personality such a force, as few single individuals have ever enjoyed merely as private citizens. Her name was a household name throughout the land, and there were many groups, including thousands of individuals, who looked upon her as a prophetess inspired.

Her Prime Characteristics.

Courage, endurance, enthusiasm, and philosophical insight were the prime characteristics of all her activities, and all philosophers recognize these as the uttermost crown and glory of any civilization. That they should all have found their realization in the heart of one woman was the constant astonishment of all who knew her. With infinite tact and versatility she gave these elements of her nature to any cause which she favored, and it was always the inspiring enthusiasm of leadership with which she attracted her followers, instead of the negative clamor of denunciation with which so many mistaken reformers endeavor to drive the world into their way of thinking.

What these causes were it is hardly necessary to say, as all the world knows them. Her friendship for the Greeks at the time of their revolution, for the Poles, the Armenians, and the Russian Jews, and the oppressed of all lands who came to our shores, or who appealed to our sympathies; likewise the cause of international peace; the cause of the laboring man and woman and every phase of the woman question, from the industrial and sanitation problems of our cities, up to the fullest and highest realization of woman's equality before the law, as the equal of men. The last piece of work which her life accomplished was a patient investigation of the influence of Woman Suffrage upon the States where her sex have now enjoyed that privilege in our own country.

There is one phase of Mrs. Howe's influence which must not be overlooked; the woman of our day and of the succeeding years, must, and will, see to it that it is never forgotten. That phase is the beautiful simplicity and unassuming naturalness with which she gave all her heart and all her days to human service. In this respect we are glad to say that she is the typical American woman and that unnumbered millions will follow her practice as their loftiest ideal. The study of her life and the effort to assimilate its loveliness would cure half the social ills which beset our womanhood. The degrading influence of hardening selfishness, which threatens the very foundations of our national life, would speedily be forgotten and lost to sight if some of our so-called social leaders would emulate the example of Mrs. Howe. We believe that she will become the type after which the woman of the future is to be modeled. It cannot be that she has lived in vain, for every year of the future, we firmly believe, is destined to widen her influence and to deepen the affection with which her memory shall be cherished by the women of America.
